TARIFF BILL PASSED

Senate Votes New Measure by 47 to 31 After Fierce Attack by Dolliver of Iowa.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The Senate this afternoon, by a vote of 47 to 31, adopted the Conference report on the tariff bill, thus passing the measure through Congress.

It is believed President Taft will sign the bill before night.

Before the votes were taken Senator Dolliver of Iowa, leader of the Republican insurgents, made a fiery speech against the report. Others expressed opposition to it, while feeling constrained to vote for it.

All of the Democrats and seven Republicans voted against the report. Senator McEnery of Louisiana was absent, but was paired in favor of the bill. The complete vote is:

Yeas—Aldrich, Borah, Bourne, Bradley, Brandegee, Brown, Burkeley, Burkett, Burnham, Burrows, Burton, Carter, Clarke of Wyoming, Crane, Crawford, Cullom, Curtis, Depew, Dick, Dickinson, Dupont, Elkins, Flint, Frye, Gamble, Guggenheim, Hale, Heyburn, Johnston, Jones, Kean, Lodge, Lorimer, McCumber, Oliver, Page, Penrose, Perkins, Pyles, Root, Scott, Smith of Michigan, Smoot, Stephenson, Sutherland, Warner, Wetmore.

Nays—Bacon, Bailey, Pinkhead, Chamberlain, Clay, Culberson, Daniel, Fletcher, Foster, Frazier, Gore, Hughes, McLaurin, Martin, Newlands, Overman, Paynter, Rayner, Shively, Simons, Smith of Maryland, Stone, Taliaferro, Democrats; Bovegidgo, Bristow, Clapp, Cummins, Dolliver, LaFollette, Nelson, Republicans. Total, 31.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Aug. 5.—Despite the heavy grounds, caused by downpours in the early morning, the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers met in the last game of the series this afternoon. The grounds were not as heavy as was expected by the fans for Jerome Kelly had his men out in full force all morning raking and rolling the infield.

Though the sky was dark and gloomy when the teams took to the field, the fans didn't hesitate over the prospect of another series of showers and turned out in fine style. However, this afternoon's crowd looked like only a handful when compared with the mobs that attended the last two days' performances.

At the start of this afternoon's entertainment the Tigers were away to the lead in the series as Lake had put three victories over while Jennings, although working his "Yah" to a frazzle, was able to cop only one game.

Lake didn't have much choice in the way of pitchers, for the only man who seemed to have at least a god game up his sleeve was Frank Arellanes, who is a very much overworked young twirler. Larry Pape, Hall and Wood, however, were all out warming up, and Lake didn't make his selection until the last minute.

SENATOR'S WIFE GETS 6-MONTHS SENTENCE IN SENSATIONAL CASE

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Eliza Beth Grinnell, the fair-faced young wife of State Senator Frank Grinnell of Tiverton, R. I., and Otto Carr Martinson, Fall River agent for the National Cash Register Company, were adjudged guilty of a serious charge in New Bedford district court today and were sentenced to six and seven months respectively in the House of Correction. Both pleaded not guilty, appealed, and were held in $500 bonds each.

Their appearance in court followed their sensational arrest in Mrs. Grinnell's room in the Parker House, this city, shortly after midnight by Sergeant William Fowler and Patrolman Mullin on complaint of Senator Grinnell.

Mrs. Grinnell's girlish beauty was the talk of police circles. She is called the prettiest woman who has ever appeared as defendant in a criminal case in this court. About twenty-five years of age, a perfect blonde in style, with well-fitting garments, she was greatly admired. Throughout the hearing she appeared considerably abashed, especially when Sergeant Fowler went into details of the raid on her hotel room.

Complained to Police.

Last evening, according to the police court testimony, Mrs. Grinnell went to the Parker House and engaged a room under an assumed name. Martinson engaged another room under his own name.

That same evening Senator Grinnell went to police headquarters and complained that he suspected his wife and a man were at the hotel together. Sergeant Fowler and Patrolman Mullin went with him to the Parker House and up to the room which had been assigned to Martinson. The room was empty. They went then to Mrs. Grinnell's room. Sergeant Fowler knocked. Mrs. Grinnell came to the door.

"Is this your wife?" Fowler asked Senator asked Grinnell. The Senator said she was.

"Is Mr. Grinnell your husband?" asked Fowler of Mrs. Grinnell. She admitted she was the Senator's wife, showing much distress as she did so. The party entered the room, where Martinson was found. Mrs. Grinnell and Martinson were locked up, despite their protests.

Might Take Her Back.

Before Judge Milliken to-day Mrs. Grinnell and Martinson waived examination after pleading not guilty. Sergeant Fowler related the raid. Attorney Keaney, counsel for the defendants, asked that Mrs. Grinnell's case be placed on probation. Senator Grinnell said:

"I am fond of my wife. During the past week her father and I have tried to induce her to return to me. But she has refused."

Judge Milliken—Would you take her back now?

Senator Grinnell—Under certain conditions. Those are up to her.

Senator Grinnell asked for a delay in the case that he might talk with his wife again, but Judge Milliken found her and Martinson guilty and sentenced them, on their appeal they were locked up for lack of immediate bail.

RED SOX, DETROITS IN FINAL

DEAD WOMAN IS IDENTIFIED

The woman whose mysterious death at No. 2 Oak place, South End, is being investigated to-day by the police was this afternoon identified as Mrs. Ethel White, wife of Charles B. White of No. 72 St. Paul street, Brookline.

The husband himself made the identification at the North Grove street morgue. White was found at the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he presented himself some days ago saying that he feared he had lockjaw. To-day he was discharged from the institution, no signs of tetanus developing. He went to the morgue at the request of Medical Examiner George H. Magrath and identified the dead woman as his wife.

Owing to the absence of Assistant Medical Examiner Leary, Dr. Magrath has a number of autopsies to perform and he may not hold one on Mrs. White's body. There was a wound in the back of the woman's head. The room where she was found was in the greatest disorder.

The dead body of Mrs. White was found in the room of Walter F. Smith, fifty-two years old, reddling at No. 2 Oak place, who reported the matter to the police. Smith is an express wagon driver.

LINER SINKS; LOSS OF LIFE

CAPETOWN, Aug. 5.—The New Zealand liner Maori foundered last night, and it is feared many lives were lost. The bodies of six passengers were washed ashore to-day. A fleet of relief boats has been sent to pick up any survivors.

The Maori was a British built vessel of 4,155 tons. She was a passenger carrier and plied between New Zealand and England. She was enroute to London when she foundered.

BAT ASKS 10,000 FROM A HOTEL

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—A sequel to the "Bout" between Bat Nelson, lightweight champion, and the Bellevue-Stratford hotel over the efforts of the fighter to obtain accommodations at the latter place, came to-day when Nelson instituted a suit for damages against the hotel.

Papers in the case were filed by E. Waring Wilson, an attorney in the U. S. Circuit Court, and the damages asked for is $10,000. Nelson declares that he seeks vindication, and that he can also prove that he has been injured financially.

YACHTS REACH NEWPORT TODAY

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 5.—The New York Yacht Club squadron sailed up the bay to-day and captured the city. White capped yachtmen filled the streets, and society has given up all other pleasures to arrange fetes in their honor. The Albola, the flagship of Commodore Arthur Curtiss James, was the first ship in. She was followed by J. P. Morgan's Corsair. Then among others came the old cup defender Vigilant, owned by William Isler, the Blair yacht, Dianna, the Putnam yacht, Aleoyne; Lloyd Phoenix's Intrepid and Visitor III.

To-morrow the yachts will sail for the Astor cup. Saturday the King's cup will be the event of the day. On Monday they will sail for Vineyard Haven. The run up the Maine coast to Portland, Rockland and Edgewoggin follow. The squadron will disband at Bar Harbor.

INITIALS OFF THE NEW PENNY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh to-day decided to remove the initials of Victor D. Brenner of New York, designer of the new Lincoln penny, from the coin. As soon as the dies can be changed no more coins bearing the initials will be issued.

Protests from all over the country have reached the Treasury Department on account of the initials "V. D. B." appearing at the bottom of the reverse side of the new penny.

There are thirty-four women in the party, and a special program has been prepared for their entertainment. The entertainment committee is Major Charles S. Porter, chairman; Mark H. Warren, Fred J. POLICE TO ENFORCE ANTI-BETTING LAW AT BALL GAMES

Strict enforcement of the law by the Boston authorities would have stopped both double headers played at the Huntington avenue grounds Tuesday and Wednesday by the Tigers and the Red Sox and disappointed more than 50,000 fans who saw the games. This fact became known to-day when the license of the management of the Boston Americans to give athletic exhibitions was renewed after having been held up since August 1, pending an attempt by the authorities to secure the cooperation of the baseball management in a campaign against betting at the ball games.

By some new rules the police expect to more effectually cope with gambling at the Huntington avenue grounds.

The first rule says that anyone gauging or attempting to game on the grounds will be at once ejected.

Rule two provides that all employes shall co-operate with the police by pointing out all those who they think are gaming or are going to game.

POSTAL CLERK IS HELD FOR JURORS

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Handicapped by the lack of pitching talent, the Doves dumped off another game to the champion Cubs, and according to the calculations of the Chicago fans, are to contribute another this afternoon.

Manager Chance is anxious to take advantage of anything good that comes his way while the mighty Wagner is unable to help keep the Pirates going to sustain their lead, and nothing could please him better than to cop the entire series from the tail-enders. He said to-day:

"While there is not a great deal of glory for the champions in beating the tail-enders, every game counts and we are taking care of everything that comes along that will help us up closer to Pittsburg.

"The Pirates have been going too well to keep up the gait and must take their share of hard luck between now and the end of the season. The injury which is keeping Wagner out of the game is really the first bit of bad luck they have had, while every other team that has a chance at the flag, has been having its share of it. Let Old Man Hard Luck

"It is a shame to take advantage of the hard luck of the Doves, but we need the games. The Boston team is an earnest, hard working aggregation and deserves a better position in the race than they are now holding. If they had a better pitching staff they would give any of the teams a battle.

"As it is there are much harder to beat than they were on their last trip by a whole lot. Harry Smith seems to be able to do there is out of them, and with a little luck breaking their way, they would finish several positions better than last."

A. PIATT ANDREW DIRECTOR OF MINT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—President Taft to-day nominated A. Piatt Andrew, Jr., of Cambridge to be director of the mint to succeed Frank A. Leach, who recently resigned from the office. Up until a year ago Mr. Andrew was professor of economics at Harvard. Since that time he has been employed by the National Monetary Commission in Washington. Although his home is this city, he had a residence in Cambridge.

THAW'S DEFENSE ATTACK ON WHITE

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The memory of Stanford White was bitterly assailed this afternoon in the proceedings brought before Justice Mills in the Supreme Court at White Plains for the liberation of Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan. It was the beginning of the defense. Witness after witness was put on to show the rapacity with which the famous architect pursued young women and the insidious methods he used to deflect them from the moral paths. Letters written by White were shown and statements made by Thaw regarding White were repeated.

David N. Carvalho, the famous hand writing expert, was the chief witness for the defense. John B. Gleason, associated with the counsel in Thaw's two trials, was another. All told of material facts bearing on the relation of mind between Thaw and the man he killed and calculated to show that a sane mind might have held a similar point of view.

Mr. Moreschauer opened the proceedings by offering the affidavit of a Miss Heck with dealing with Stanford White's alleged wrongdoings. Mr. Jerome objected strenuously to the affidavit.

"Before the first murder trial, both sides raked the Tenderloin in an effort to show the truth or falsity of the stories told of White," Jerome argued. "Hundreds of chorus girls were questioned and while it was established that White had meretricious relations with women, he never ravaged any one. It is only in justice to the memory of one who is dead and can not defend himself that I ask this affidavit be excluded."

Justice Mills ruled to admit the document with the provision that Thaw should again take the stand and swear that he had knowledge of the affidavit before he shot White.

Handwriting Expert Called.

David A. Carvalho was then called by Thaw's lawyer. The handwriting expert said that he had attended every session of the first trial, sitting alongside of Thaw throughout the proceedings.

"Mr. Thaw did make suggestions to his counsel, but never took complete charge of his affairs," Mr. Carvalho said.

"Did you examine letters supposed to have been written by Stanford White?"

"I did. There were sixty-eight of them. As far as I could I examined them and reported to Thaw that in my opinion they were in the architect's handwriting."

The witness described a long sheaf of typewritten pages containing the letters of White. Mr. Carvalho identified an original letter which he said was in White's handwriting.

"Did Thaw say that the letter was written to a girl named May, and did Thaw say that White had the girl examined by a doctor, and when White found she was innocent he ruined her?"

"He did say something like that."

"And did Thaw say that May and Fay

SEIZED LACES ARE VALUED AT $801

The four trunks of laces and embroidery seized by customs officials when the steamship Cretic made this port were appraised to-day at $801.50. The duty declared on them was $480. The trunks belong to Raffaela Bandana, an Italian woman who came over in the second cabin.

POLICE SEEK RELIEF FROM PAYING CITY A PROFIT ON UNIFORMS

The rank and file of the police force of Boston have begun a concerted action through their relief association to have changed the system that compels them to buy more helmets than they need and pay about 25 per cent. more for the cloth in their uniforms than it costs the department.

The last annual report made by Police Commissioner O'Meara showed a profit on the books of the department of $2,131.90 on the sale of cloth for uniforms and the sale of helmets to members of the force.

Superintendent Pierce, who is the acting head of the department in the absence of Commissioner O'Meara, admitted to-day that he didn't know where this money earned from the members of the force went to.

"I have no knowledge," said Superintendent Pierce, "what use is made of the excess paid by the officers for the goods. I know it is carried as an asset on the books of the department."

Prices Put Up.

According to the system in vogue now each policeman must purchase from the department the cloth for his uniform. The goods are bought from a New York firm. The price that the police department pays for "blouse" cloth is $2.25 a yard; for "panting" $3.57 a yard. When the policeman buys this same material from the department he must pay $2.55 a yard for the "blouse" stuff and $3.77 for the "panting" goods. This is required in face of the fact, the members of the force say, that they could get the cloth much cheaper from other tailors.

On the question of helmets the policemen are even more dissatisfied. The helmets are furnished the department by Raphael Mastrangalie of No. 128 Tremont street, who gets $2.75 each for them, the same price the policemen must pay for them to the department.

While it is not charged that the department is "going into the hat business," as it is alleged the tailoring business, yet the policemen declare that they pay more for their helmets than a police do in many other cities.

The policemen, as things stand now, must buy two helmets a year, in the Spring and in the Fall. That costs $5.50 a year for hats. Should a lieutenant take especial care of his helmet, so that it lasted a year, they would not in the least diminish his expense because he would have to buy a new hat twice a year just the same.

In the homes of nearly all of the older members of the force, there are collections of helmets that have years of wear and tear in them yet, but they are of no use to the owner.

When Superintendent Pierce was asked about these matters to-day he said that Commissioner O'Meara was the man to explain them. He added that the police force had the one privilege about his uniform —he could select his own tailor to make it after he had bought it from the department at the department's price.

ANGRY BULLS CHASE GIRLS

BROCKTON, Aug. 5.—Chased from her hammock by two angry bulls, Miss Deidre Favreau, eighteen, of No. 118 Montello street, narrowly escaped injury by climbing the roof of a bungalow.

Miss Favreau is camping out on the shores of Town River, in West Bridgewater, with her sister. She was dozing in a hammock when the bulls dashed through the underbrush. Miss Favreau sprang to the ground and ran for the bungalow of Zina C. Keith, not far away, the bulls dashing after her.

She escaped the flagpole, to climb to the roof, but it broke, and she fell to the ground. The breaking of the pole stopped the bulls for an instant, enabling the girl to get up and climb to the roof as the animals resumed their charge. One of them grazed her feet as she drew herself to safety.

ATTEMPT TO BURN MALDEN CHURCH

An attempt to burn the Linden Congregational church at Malden was discovered by boys in time to save the edifice from being destroyed.

According to the fire officials, a large quantity of dry rubbish and leaves was piled on the back steps and lighted. When the blaze was discovered the woodwork had ignited and the flames were working through the walls. A still alarm was sounded and the department made short work in extinguishing the blaze.

FAMINE PERIL FOR SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 5.—The situation throughout Sweden to-day remained quiet under the grip of militarism. The government believes that by maintaining the upper hand it can break the backbone of the strike, which is threatening to develop into civil war.

The shortage of food became serious to-day. Soldiers took charge of the milk depots, dealing out small quantities. There is a lack of meat and the strikers are practically living on fish. Stores and bakeries have been closed, the owners fearing an outbreak. Prohibitive prices are charged. Paupers are being taken from the public institutions and put to work in place of the striking grave diggers and cab drivers.

Fear of violence has led to the most extraordinary measures. The street railway systems are still idle to-day. The ferry lines are tied up. Industrial centers are paralyzed. Ships are loaded by soldiers and troops are guarding the municipal electric light plant, the water works and the bridges. The saloons are still closed and only patrons of the best restaurants can get liquor by ordering a full meal.

THRIFTY SAILORS PILE UP MONEY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Though "Jack Ashore" may have acquired the reputation of being the model spendthrift, the latest statistics of the Navy Department show him to be a particularly thrifty person.

According to a pamphlet published by Assistant Paymaster Maupin of the Navy, twenty-two per cent. of the sailormen are putting something by. The average pay is about $30 a month and the average allotment is $28. There are 7,700 men making such allotments to savings institutions and insurance companies, while 6,300 are taking this means of providing for their families.

Motor-Tire Bathing New Ostend Fashion.

LONDON.—A new bathing fashion has been started at Ostend by a chauffeur who, dressed in scarlet and with a Phrygian cap, entered the sea with the inflated inner tube of a motor car tire. First he sported in it as a child does a hoop. Then sitting on it as in a lifebuoy, he paddled about, propelling himself with his hands or lay basking in the sun. His enjoyment was so manifest that in joke a party of women swimmers borrowed the tire and, with shrieks of laughter, imitated his antics. The idea has taken and scores of persons now disport themselves in the sea on the tubes of their motor cars. The prompt u races attract many competitors and not to take a tube sun bath is to be out of the mode.

The ship circled the tower of the Cologne cathedral, flying low, and then sailed to the suburb of Bickendorf to come down. The landing place and the balloon shed were surrounded by immense crowds.

The progress of the vessel was reported by telegraph as it came down the Rhine. Crowds witnessed the passage from Limburg, Coblenz, Bonn and Bonn.

The ship ran into a thick fog as it approached Cologne and deviated from its course in the southwest and missed Cologne by ten miles or so. It got its bearings again near Dusseldorf, when the fog lifted it headed straight for the city and came in rapidly.

RAIN BREAKS DROUTH FOR NEW ENGLAND

About three-quarters of an inch of rain fell on Greater Boston to-day between midnight and noon. To be exact 0.73 of an inch was the amount of rainfall measured at the local weather bureau. This was about as much rain for 12 hours as fell during the entire month of July.

All over New England soaking rains are reported to-day. The heaviest downpour was at Hartford, Conn., where over an inch fell. In New York the rainfall amounted to .08 more than an inch. At 6 o'clock but a trace of rain was reported at Portland, Me., but the storm was heading that way, and it is raining in that place there this afternoon.

The drouth has been broken. Pastures will soon be green again and the threatened milk famine should vanish into thin air. The farmers, especially those of Southern New England, are happy to-day because their crops are now springing up with renewed life. The rain came just in the nick of time.

The last real drenching this part of the country received was on June 13 and 14, when .78 of an inch was the amount of water. On June 3 and 4 2.15 inches fell and that helped a whole lot.

"Clearing weather this afternoon and tonight," said Forecaster Smith. "Friday fair, light variable winds."

The rain was not confined to the west ward as is quite probable, the weather will greet workers rapidly. Norfolk, Va.; Portland, Me.; Concord, N. H.; Providence, R. I.; Nantucket, Hartford, Conn., and Albany, N. Y., all reported rain to-day.

FIND MAN'S BODY IN PARK.

The body of an unidentified man, forty-five years of age, was found lying inside the fence of the Forest Park, near Seaverne avenue, to-day. There were no marks of violence and as his coat was buttoned and he was well dressed, it is believed he died of exposure while asleep. Medical Examiner Leary will perform an autopsy.

'SMELLERS' IN DELVE AS TO PAY INCREASE

Lawrence J. Stockton, acting chairman of the bath trustees, and Building Commissioner Everett appeared before the Finance Commission this afternoon in the probe that body is making of salary increases in city departments.

Salaries in the building commissioner's office were raised about a month ago, with the approval of Mayor Hibbard. The commission will consider these and find out what recommendations made by the former commissioner relative to the maintenance of the department have been carried out.

It is understood Mr. Stockton was also called to give information on the contract awarded by the trustees for resanding the beach at the L Street Bath.

THIEF CAUGHT BY AUTO SENTENCED

Victor Ferri, a thief caught after an automobile chase through the streets of Charlestown, with his companion, Victor Jones, was sent to the House of Correction for six months to-day by Judge Pezzle of the District court. The men were charged with having ratified Joseph Medeiros, a passenger in the Maine & Star Beer Circle, to Winthrop Field, while they were caught in the act of robbing him by William King and Jones, janitor of the Winthrop School. Jones was exonerated by the court, who had succeeded in gaining some distance, was caught after Medeiros had given chase in a private automobile into service and caused his arrest to be made.

RUNS AUTO UP TRESTLE.

Blinded by the glare of the lights on the forward part of his automobile, an unknown man, driving a touring car, had a narrow escape from death on Harvard street, Malden, when, with two women, he ran the car for one hundred feet up the temporary Boston Elevated trestle, too, was had been with him before, being badly shaken.

'G. A. R. AWAY TO SALT LAKE AMID CHEERS

With cheering and waving of flags the special train bearing the Massachusetts delegation of veterans and the members of the ladies' auxiliary left the North Station at 10 a. m. to-day for the forty-third annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic which opens Monday in Salt Lake City. The platform was crowded with relatives and friends of the men in blue.

The train consisted of three pullmans, a tourist car and a combination baggage and smoker. It was in charge of Conductor J. J. Meade and Engineer J. Henry. The train will run direct to Salt Lake City, arriving at 5 a. m. Monday. Four hours will be spent in Chicago. The train will run over the Boston and Maine to Rotterdam Junction, over the West Shore to Buffalo, thence over the "Nickel Plate" into Chicago. From there to Council Bluffs the route will be over the North-western, ending in the Union Pacific system for Salt Lake City. On the return the stops will be made at Colorado Springs, Denver and Niagara Falls.

TROLLEYS IN COLLISION IN HARBOR TUBE

The passengers that jammed two East Boston tunnel cars, many of whom were women, were badly shaken up, injured by flying glass and frightened, and two motormen were hurt, one seriously, in a rear-end collision early to-day at the Atlantic avenue station of the harbor tube.

An Orient Heights car, filled to the steps, had just stopped about the centre of the station, inward bound, and the passengers had started to alight. Without the least warning a Jeffries Point car crashed into the rear of the Orient Heights car.

The impact of the two cars was so terrific that the sound of it reverberated from one end of the tunnel to the other. Cries of fright followed, women dashed hysterically and shattered glass showered upon the platform like a violent storm.

The vestibules of the two cars were splintered to bits and the wonder of it was that the motorman of the rear car and the conductor on the rear of the front car were not killed.

The injured motorman is Albert W. Williams of No. 3 Harmony street, East Boston. To an attendant at the hospital Williams said:

"The air brakes would not work. I tried to stop the car but the rails were slippery. I am very sorry it happened but I did everything in my power to prevent the accident. I am glad that no others were hurt."

Williams was found pinned in his car in great pain. He was hoped out, bleeding profusely from various cuts. He was hurried to the Relief Station. It was said there that while the motorman was severely hurt, that he would probably recover.

The motorman of the front car was thrown violently against the glass in the compartment in which he stood and severely bruised. He was not taken to the hospital.

In the meantime the passengers were piling out of the cars in great confusion with a vague idea of what had happened and laboring under the idea that a much worse accident had occurred. Some of the women were barely able to stand and they reached the street in the downpour of rain so bewildered that they were taken to nearby business places until they recovered.

Traffic in the tunnel was held up for twenty minutes, and this occasioned further excitement, word having got around that there had been a frightful tunnel disaster. The damaged cars were taken away and men with buckets and shovels scooped up the broken glass. Some of the glass blew across to the outward bound track.

BROOKLINE GIRL DROWNED WHILE WADING IN POND

Miss Lillian E. Boulter.

Miss Lillian E. Boulter of Brookline was drowned in Thompson's pond, Parris Point, Me., yesterday afternoon, while wading within a few feet of the shore of the pond. Three companions made desperate efforts to save her.

The news of the tragedy reached relatives in Malden last night. Miss Boulter went in wading with her host, Mrs. Arthur Record, with whom she was spending a two weeks' vacation at Camp Dooley. While wading along the shore of the pond she stepped into a mud hole. Two men and Mrs. Record struggled to save her, but she sank and was drowned.

Miss Boulter was thirty years old. She came from Prince Edward Island thirteen years ago. She has two married sisters and a brother in Malden and a brother who lives in Melrose.

SOLDIERS IN MARCH; THERMOMETER 120

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 5.—Japanese newspapers contain bitter attacks on the military authorities of Japan in consequence of fatalities from sunstroke while the South Osaka division was making a forced march recently in a burning sun, with the thermometer at 120 degrees. Six men died and scores fell exhausted to be picked up and carried to barracks. Forty prostrated men were conveyed by train to the garrison hospital, where several became insane, attacked the officers and wrecked the furniture in the wardroom. The march covering twenty-nine miles occupied fourteen and one-half hours.

SHOOTS MOTHER FOR RAT.

ANTI-JEW HOTEL SIGN CAUSES SUIT

A small glass sign containing in gold lettering the words, "Hebrews Patronage Not Solicited," hanging back of the clerk's office in the fashionable Hotel Pemberton at Hull has resulted in a $5,000 suit against the proprietors, George Page and Charles Pilsbury, by Jacob C. Brash, a furrier in Avon street.

The writ was served upon the proprietors to-day by a deputy sheriff. Mr. Brash through his attorney, Benjamin Dolkotin of No. 4 Postoffice square, the law said:

"I consider it an outrage and contrary to the constitutional rights of my race to discriminate against the Jewish. There is no real reason why that hotel should discriminate against the Hebrews and that sign is a direct insult to any Hebrew.

"I endeavored to engage a room at the hotel, and the clerk, after carefully scrutinizing me, proceeded to jerk his thumb in the direction of that sign on the door. They were willing to furnish meals, but not a room and inasmuch as I desire to spend a number of days there I thought better of it and would have consented to give me a room, but I was insulted and dispirited and left.

Mr. Page in speaking of the suit said: "Out of self-protection to our patrons we deemed it advisable this year to make a change in our regulations and solicit a select patronage. Last year we lost many of our best patrons owing to the presence in our hotel of many wealthy Hebrew families. Naturally we do not desire any repetition this year, hence the sign. We, as a matter of fact, have not been advertising by refusing polut blank to serve them in our dining room or at the hotel proper. Neither have we refused to let rooms, but we do not want their patronage.

"If all hotel proprietors had the same experience as we did last Summer they would feel compelled to adopt similar reasons to take similar action."

HARRIMAN BUYS WHOLE HIGHWAY

NEWBURG, Aug. 5.—A specific melody of the Town Board of Woodbury, Orange County, in which E. H. Harriman owns a Summer home, was held, and the necessary legal requirements were completed by which Mr. Harriman takes over about three miles of highway belonging to the town. He pays a big price for the roadway. Mr. Harriman gives another strip of road built by him, traversing the same territory by a different route. The two roads run from Central Valley to Tuxedo, past Forest Lodge, the site of Mr. Harriman's new mansion, and by Arden, where he owns a number of farms and where his present residence is. The road which he gives to the town is to be built nine years ago. It is of macadam.

MARSHALL WILDER WOULD FIGHT JACK

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Among the passengers who arrived to-day on the Cunarder Marshall P. Wilder. The merry little fellow deplored the death of Harry Pullian and the low position of the Giants, and said he was glad Jeffries had decided to fight. "If he had not I would have taken him on myself," he declared.

FAILS TO FIND HER LAUTERBACH'S WIFE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—H. G. Hersch-feld, a New York attorney and brother-in-law of Alfred Lauterbach, here investigating the alleged Lauterbach-Cunningham marriage, said to-day: "I am now at the end of my string. I have exhausted every effort to prove the wedding of Miss Sophie Houston to Lauterbach in Rutherford, N. J., and Alfred Lauterbach of New York, but I cannot find one scintilla of evidence pertaining to the asserted marriage."

TAFT OFFICE DESK ARRIVES AT BEVERLY

BEVERLY, Aug. 5.—When President Taft arrives in Beverly Saturday morning, if he arrives, he will be given a quiet welcome. On his first appearance here a month ago several thousand people turned out to see him at the Montserrat Station only to find that he had come half an hour early and was already in the Summer White House.

Saturday morning there will be undoubtedly a small crowd at the station, but as there is a possibility that he will motor up from Boston instead of coming down by train there will be no set programme.

You can bet there was excitement in Beverly to-day. A big moving van came down Broadway from the depot and swung into Cabot street. When the team drew up in front of the Mason building a large crowd quickly congregated.

It was the furniture for the President's office. A number of husky moving men carried the chairs, tables and desks up the single flight of stairs and down to the suite reserved for the President at the south end of the building.

A messenger from Washington was on hand to arrange the furniture as it arrived, and he picked out the bright, sunniest corner for the big rolltop mahogany which Mr. Taft uses. A huge office chair with leather seat and back and a screw bar as thick as the shaft of a man of war was placed in front of it. All the furniture had not yet arrived. There will be rugs, tables and desks for the other rooms and half a dozen secretaries and as many clerks to be accommodated.

CHARMING CHILD STORY, "Papa Bolton, Wife & Co.," will be printed in the SUNDAY AMERICAN. If you love children, you must not miss it.

RAPS CONDUCT OF ASSESSORS ON MATTHEWS

The so-called Matthews Park, back of Hotel Oxford, valued at $20,500, upon which it is charged Nathan Matthews, head of the old Boston Finance Commission and former Mayor, did not pay any taxes for twenty-three years, would have become the property of the city, according to Councilman Frank Goodwin, if the assessors had taken the proper steps to claim the land.

"The figures from the tax books show," said Councilman Goodwin "that the various other lots owned by Matthews were taxed at so much a foot. Then, in 1907, when it was thought advisable to tax the lot that had been exempt so long this was simply added to the former taxable property.

"Where had this lot been all these years to escape the eyes of the assessors? Did it drop down out of the sky in 1907, and was it then suddenly pounced upon and taxed?

"Mr. Matthews is not the man to pay more taxes than he thinks are just, as witness the fact that he had the value of Hotel Oxford reduced $25,000 in 1904, and the value of the land upon which it stands cut down $12,500.

"Now that shows that land and buildings were not going up there of late if it showed anything, so when the assessors decided to deduct the Matthews Park from the surrounding property and tax it separately, why was it that Matthews did not have on his rights and have the taxes of the other property reduced just that amount?

Secretary Folsom of the Board of Assessors comes out to-day in a statement in which he declares that Matthews doesn't own the city a cent for taxes. In telling why the value of Mr. Matthews' property was reduced in 1904 Mr. Folsom makes this statement:

"We simply were requested by Mr. Matthews to make an abatement of his taxes in 1904. We went up there and looked over the property, and decided that it was over-assessed. That is the only reason the reduction was made."

A number of people from Greater Boston have been present in Hadley during the last four days to attend the celebration of the town's two hundred and fiftieth anniversary. The celebration was brought to a close yesterday with an elaborate pageant, portraying the history of the town by twelve historical floats, and a large military and civic parade. Unusual interest was attached to the celebration from the fact that it was planned and worked out by Clarence Hawkes, the blind poet of Hadley. After the usual necessary exercises were held in the great tent, Judge Henry Stockbridge spoke and the oration for the day was President William E. Huntington of Boston University.

TRAMP WEEPS FOR HIS DOG

Joe Waldeo, tramp, went to the island to-day for three months, heart-broken at being separated from Beppo, his St. Bernard.

Joe had a tramp home in a hut near the Route 9 Boston dump. While Joe foraged for food, Beppo would guard the hut.

Yesterday afternoon Joe came home early with a bundle of food, refreshed himself and fed Beppo generously. Then Joe lay down to sleep and Beppo kept lookout.

Patrolman Coffey of Broadway station, just by chance, strolled over to the hut. Beppo growled and Joe awakened and came out. Joe went along peaceably to the station and Beppo followed dubiously behind.

When they had booked Joe and started him downstairs to a cell Beppo trailed along, as a matter of course, and the house cops didn't have the heart to separate the two. But word had been sent to the Animal Rescue League that a fine St. Bernard dog was likely to be overcome for a while, so the league sent an agent over after Beppo.

Joe cried like a baby, especially when Beppo licked his hand in dumb sympathy. But when Joe ordered Beppo to follow the league agent, Beppo obediently went along, though he couldn't understand it.

In South Boston District Court to-day Judge Fallon gave Joe three months.

"I don't care what becomes of me," muttered the tramp. "They took the only friend I had."

'DASH OF DEVIL HELPS WOMAN'

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—"It takes a touch of the devil to make a perfect woman," says Walter D. Brenner, sculptor and designer of the new Lincoln one-cent piece, "and the American woman has that touch of the devil."

Mr. Brenner was discussing his art in his studio, at No. 114 East Twenty-eighth street. He displayed a statue of "Nature," on which he is still at work, and for which, he said, the typical woman of America was the inspiration.

"There is the super-woman," he said. "The compelling beauty of the women of this country has in it the expression of fire in eyes. Any woman you may meet—the casual passer-by, the working girl, the society girl—all the women of your country have the vital spark of intellectuality burning in their eyes.

"One sees that the American woman is not only the mother, the home-maker, the home maker, but the generator of ideas, advancement and development. I have tried to catch that expression. It is symbolical. I believe, of the future woman—the daughter of the great woman of to-day. The lamenting Joan of Arc of drill, without Poland and Grover Cleveland, Jr. The Cleveland children, who flash the Venus and the angel in her and places them above all other women in the universe."

The Shams to Look Out For In Evaporated Milk

Our purpose is not to denounce rival brands. We simply wish to compel them to give for the money somewhere near what you get in Van Camp's.

All evaporated milk is sterilized, and all brands are free from germs.

The poorest grades sold are better than raw milk, and immeasurably more safe.

But, now that evaporated milk is so common, it is well to know how to get the most for your money.

So, in our mutual interest, we tell of these shams.

Sham No. 1
Condensed Milk

Sweetened condensed milk contains about 40 per cent of sugar. As a result, the milk is thin and watery.

The sugar was originally used to preserve it. But the discovery of sterilization made sugar unnecessary.

To buy condensed milk means to waste half of your money. First, because it is nearly half sugar. Second, because of the scanty cans—only 12 ounces for 10 cents.

If you want a sweetened milk, the cheapest way is to add the sugar yourself.

In Van Camp's you get 16 ounces for 10 cents—exactly one-third more. And Van Camp's is all milk.

Condensed milk, because of the sugar, is unfit for cooking. Van Camp's serves every purpose.

It gives you for cooking a whole rich milk which is always convenient. It gives to milk dishes a flavor and richness which one never can get from raw milk.

Condensed is a profitable milk for the maker. That is why this old-fashioned milk is continued. But it serves for only a limited use, and it costs twice as much as Van Camp's.

Sham No. 2
Inferior Milks

We buy nothing but Holstein cows—the world's best breed. They are robust, contented, famous for their vitality.

Mongrel cows cost less money, of course, but the difference fully shows in the milk.

The milk of common cows, evaporated, costs just as much as Van Camp's. Its value is considerably less.

We evaporate from our Holstein milk a full two-thirds of the water. The result is a milk as thick as thick cream. Every can will show 28 per cent solids—8 per cent butter fat.

When this milk is reduced to the basis of milkman's milk, the cost is about six cents per quart.

If we took out only one-third of the water, we could make more money. But the loss would fall on you.

When someone says, "This milk is as good as Van Camp's," don't take it unless, by actual comparison, you find it as rich as ours.

Sham No. 3
Small Five-Cent Cans

To this sham we confess to be parties. For we, like the others, put up 5-cent cans.

But we do so only because mistaken people demand them. And we tell you the facts about them.

The 5-cent can—whether of Van Camp's or others—contains but six ounces of milk.

The 10-cent can—the large can of Van Camp's—contains 16 ounces or a full pint.

So the large can gives you one-third more than the small for your money. The difference in a year is considerable.

Some people use the small cans for fear the large won't keep. They are wrong. The opened can will keep till you use it up.

Some buy the small cans because they use the milk on the table only. They are losing its greatest service. Van Camp's for cooking is cheaper than raw milk, and vastly more convenient. And it gives you the whole rich milk, such as you don't get from the milkman.

In Van Camp's you get nothing but milk. You get Holstein milk reduced to the minimum. You get a full pint for 10 cents, and discounts when you buy cases. Don't pay the same price for evaporated milk that falls below this standard.

IN DARK AS TO PEDDOCKS ISLAND

O'Meara and Pierce Not Informed on Statue Giving Jurisdiction of the Department.

Licensing Board Star Chamber Body; Scandals Hinted in Its Handling Cases.

Nothing better shows the demoralization of the Boston police department than the fact that neither of the two men at its head, Commissioner O'Meara or Superintendent William H. Pierce, now acting as Commissioner while his chief is away on a vacation, knows the limits of the department's jurisdiction. This has been conclusively established by the BOSTON AMERICAN and it augurs ill for any immediate alleviation by them of conditions which all Boston is declaring to be intolerable as shown day by day in the AMERICAN.

A BOSTON AMERICAN reporter went to police headquarters yesterday and sent in his card to Superintendent Pierce, asking commissioner and generally spoken of around town as the real head of the department.

After fifteen minutes' delay the reporter was invited in. The superintendent, short, stocky and aggressive, in plain clothes, stood just within the bar which serves as a gate. The reporter not having met him before inquired where Superintendent Pierce could be found.

"I'm Mr. Pierce. What do you want?" he replied, standing so the reporter could not see inside the barrier.

"I want to know, Mr. Superintendent," said the reporter, "what action, if any, the Boston police force has taken in the case of the recent orgies on the Island and a gang of thieves who went with and openly robbed them on Peddock's Island. I am particularly interested in the report that one of your inspectors was in that party, were cognizant of the things that occurred and took no action."

"Peddock's Island?" gruffly repeated the acting commissioner. "That's not ours. That's Hull. We've got nothing to do with Peddock's Island."

"Are you quite sure, Mr. Superintendent?" repeated the reporter with deliberation.

"Wait a minute. I'll make sure," said the superintendent, emphasizing "make" and stepping over to a roll top desk and taking up the telephone.

Calls Up Captain.

"Captain," he said to whoever answered the call, "how about Peddock's Island? Is that ours? No? I thought so."

"Just as I said," said the acting head of Boston's police department. "That's got nothing to do with us. That's in the town of Hull, so the captain of the harbor police tells me."

"We have very different information, Mr. Superintendent," said the reporter. "Then he read for the acting commissioner the statute given elsewhere in this edition, and fixing complete responsibility on the Boston police. As the reporter read the superintendent's face grew three uniformed officials at the desks in the room, the superintendent never asked the reporter in, but kept him standing well without the sacred precincts. Listened and the tone in their attitude was comparable to that of four lumps of ice suddenly introduced into a temperature of 150 degrees fahrenheit.

Superintendent Pierce even went so far as to put his hand on the gate, as if having a feeling temptation to invite the American man within.

"Now," said the reporter, "I want to be perfectly fair with you. Commissioner O'Meara also told an American representative last week that he had no jurisdiction over Peddock's Island. Now you repeat it and your captain of harbor police, you say, is your informant. When I write my story I intend to say that none of the officials at police headquarters even knows he has jurisdiction over a place where the most outrageous violations of law recently occurred; where Chinamen were first stupefied with drugs or whiskey and choked and then were wantonly polished—not to speak of unmentionable orgies at the same outing. Do you care to make any reply at this time to that statement?"

"Well, we deny that we have jurisdiction," said Superintendent Pierce.

"If that your final reply? The American will be very glad to publish anything you may say editorially. Do you care to consider your reply further and later desire to change it?"

"Well, I guess I'll look into it further," said Superintendent Pierce.

The thaw by this time was almost complete. The stocky commissioner was a deep red in color and even smiled in a sickly way as the reporter assured him that nothing would be lost to BOSTON AMERICAN more pleasure than to write just as many complimentary things about the department as the facts of it if he would furnish the material and the facts warranted it.

"You must keep in mind, Mr. Superintendent," asserted the reporter, "that the AMERICAN has no desire to merely criticise or knock. On the contrary, it fully realizes that there are hundreds of good men and officials on the force. What the AMERICAN is seeking to do is to show the people of Boston the un-American system of secrecy in police trials, the over-hearing attitude of some of the officials and policemen, the action of some policemen in persecuting petty offenders when wanton violations of the law go unheeded—in fact to let the people know about a system rather than the acts of individuals."

Charges Against Hotels.

This little statement of the AMERICAN'S position was listened to with great interest by Superintendent Pierce and the three uniformed officers who stopped their laborious pushing of scratchy pens and appeared to hear it just as plainly.

"I am informed, Mr. Pierce," said the reporter, "that charges were recently made before the Licensing Board against the notorious Hotels Plecopo and Rome, that no charges were as yet filed and that the Licensing Board ordered the owner, Pleasope, to sell the lease and was also notified that it would only allow him to keep his license pending the sale if he could find a man who would agree not to rent rooms save to men.

"In spite of this fact the AMERICAN is informed that Captain Kimball of the Hanover street keep went on duty in full uniform for three days at the city's expense because of the complaints made against many that they gave both of these dives the highest kind of a character and still denied the testimony of the complaining witnesses including that of the Rev. Father Knapp of St. Stephen's Church."

"Now then, what have you, as acting head of the above police department, got to say about that?"

Twenty Notorious Cafes.

"I don't know anything about it," said Mr. Pierce. "That is, I have no official knowledge of any such case. I think I heard something or other about the fact that there was an effort made to get the licenses of the Plecopo and Rome revoked, and I think I heard someone say Captain Kimball had some of his men down there, but that's all I know about it."

"How about the cafes where women openly solicit men and leave no doubt of their character? Commissioner O'Meara assured the AMERICAN reporter he would cause such places to instantly lose their licenses. Are you doing anything about them?" The reporter then read a list of twenty notorious places wherein nightly for weeks and until the AMERICAN began its police series the most outrageous things were permitted and rooms rented for promises that would shock an agent de ville in Paris itself.

"Why don't you ask the Licensing Board about them?" asked Mr. Pierce.

"The Licensing Board has plenary power," said the reporter, "and it seems to the AMERICAN that the moral assurance from you and Commissioner O'Meara that you personally believe such places to be highly frequented by evil persons—which the AMERICAN has easily established to its own and the satisfaction of hundreds of its readers—would at least warn such proprietors to be on their guard."

"Well, suppose you owned such a place," said Superintendent Pierce, with his accustomed confidence of the dive proprietors, "and we said it was disorderly. We'd have to prove it, wouldn't we, even before the Licensing Board?"

Puts Burden on Captains.

"Have you instituted any such action against any of the dives the AMERICAN has called your attention to? Is the matter of the common knowledge that no respectable woman will go into any of the places named?"

"It's not so easy to prove a woman is of the class you speak," said Superintendent Pierce falling back on the usual hollow police explanation of difficulty of getting evidence.

"I don't think I've got a captain under my command who has not got good, honest men out trying to get evidence against the places in their precincts, and I don't think there's one of them would let such business go on if he knew it. You know the courts demand very complete evidence."

"It is quite true that the courts do," said the reporter, "but how about the Licensing Board? Have you tried to induce it to use its plenary powers against places which are notorious and a public scandal?"

Superintendent Pierce replied that the police captains who are directly responsible for what goes on in their precincts are alone responsible.

"I have every reason to believe that they are doing all that can be done," he said.

Star Chamber Board.

By this time Superintendent Pierce had undergone five distinct changes of complexion, ranging all the way from the flickering shades of a Cooper Hewitt vacuum electric light to the rich deep of a pigeon blood ruby. His several subordinates at the desks referred to were making impossible efforts to fill out police records and not observe their ear nearest to their chief and AMERICAN reporter, and had decidedly, secluded by unanimous consent, to defer whatever police business of the moment pressed for their attention until Superintendent Pierce had exfricated himself.

Not desiring to block all the city's police business, the reporter thanked the now thoroughly-thawed, almost cordial acting commissioner for his courtesy in not permitting him to stand for half an hour and ask him questions, and left him to get some line on the way Boston's Licensing Board does things.

Whatever has been said of secrecy and star chamber and Venetian Doge and Russian methods in the administration of the police department would have to be raised to the nth power as applied to the Licensing Board.

A young man who was at the secretary's desk in the rooms of the Licensing Board interrupted his conversation with a caller long enough to call the attention of the AMERICAN man that the Board was not in.

"It will be here for a week," he said, and continued his talk with his friend.

The reporter persisted in his inquiries, and was fortunate in getting Chairman Ezra H. Baker on the telephone.

"The AMERICAN would like to make an appointment with you and ask some questions about the way you handle the excise question in Boston," said the reporter.

"Oh, I never discuss the license question away from my office," said Mr. Baker.

"But this is a rather exceptional case," insisted the reporter. "The AMERICAN wishes to ask you several questions which some people might think in the nature of charges. It wants to be perfectly fair and gives you this opportunity to make absolutely reply."

"Who are you, anyway?" demanded Mr. Baker. "Are you the reporter who regularly reports news at my meetings? You know the Licensing Board never talks to any reporter except one."

Refuses to Hear Question.

When told by his questioner that he was not the reporter referred to, but was merely assigned to make certain specific inquiries, Mr. Baker said:

"Well, if you have any questions to ask you might submit them in writing to the Board, and we will consider whether or not we care to make any reply."

"This is a case involving a secret hearing recently into an action to revoke licenses held by two notorious dives and demands instant attention," insisted the AMERICAN man, "and we would like to put the questions to you as the chairman who have been given to understand that the way your board handled this case is a public scandal."

"I shall certainly not listen to any statement without consulting my associates," said Mr. Baker.

"Then you definitely refuse to even hear the questions?"

"I certainly do. If you have any charges to make against the Licensing Board or its methods go to the Governor. I bid you good day, sir."

Power Is Unrivalled.

It will take much more space than the AMERICAN can afford to-day to go into this matter of the Licensing Board. Later the edition may have to be turned on its body and the scandal referred to will have complete publicity.

With more power than any similar organization in the United States with less responsibility than would be expected of one of the petty administrative officials of the Czar, disposing in secret of vast interests involving hundreds of thousands of dollars, this board refuses to exercise the great power and seems indisposed to even inquire into the most scandalous, shameful abuse of its licenses.

WHITE'S LETTERS TO GIRLS READ IN COURT

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

THAW ELUDES HIS GUARD, LEAVING ROOM

Old Stories of Dinner Orgies Revived by Whiting Expert Witness.

Templeton had burned the "mushroom letter." White then wrote to the former:

"I don't recall his mentioning the name of Fay Templeton, but I know May's name."

"Did Thaw say that the letter was burned because it was so terrible that May's father would kill her and Stanford White if he ever saw the 'mushroom letter?'"

"He did say something like that, I believe."

"Did Thaw say White respected the girl and treated her with every consideration until he learned she was a good girl and then his attitude changed and he ruined her?"

"He did say something about that."

"Mushroom Letter" Read.

Mr. Morschauser tried to show that Thaw had told Mr. Carvalho about the resentment Edna Goodrich, now Mrs. Nat Goodwin, and her mother showed after another of White's alleged wrongdoings. The witness insisted that he could not recall in detail what his client had said. Justice Mills admitted as evidence the so-called "mushroom letter." It appeared to have been somewhat mutilated by erasure and read as follows:

Dear May—I am the most awful-est of frauds, when it comes to letter-writing. It is no use, I have what Peter Dooley calls the "writiphobia" and a bad case at that. I am glad you are having such a good time. A dose of home after all is the best medicine [illegible] can take. Mushroom in the world. But I do not see what use mushrooms are anyway. Cut it out. By the way, wherever is that full bust going to sail. The "Social Whirl" has opened and is whirling along and is very good. Seriously, dear May, when are you coming? Whatever you do, however, do not come back prettier or more alluring than you are now, for under these circumstances I could not be responsible for my actions and there would be "reel" trouble."

Yours, (signed) WHITE.

When ....schauer called for the Sue Parker letters Jerome asked that the matter be explained as he had never heard the name before.

Sold Letters for $500.

"In December, 1906, I went to the office of Charles E. Russell, a Brooklyn lawyer, to meet a Miss Sue Parker who had letters she said were from Stanford White," Mr. Carvalho said.

"I felt the letters were bonafide and Miss Parker wanted $5,000 for the set, but afterwards accepted $500. Miss Parker said she met White at a concert when she was seventeen years old. He became enamored of her and treated her with many gifts. Later he took her to a place called the 'Eagle's Nest,' and after plying her with wine made an attack on her.

"Before this she had been very kind to her, guiding her confidence.

Details of White Dinners.

"She related to me the details of dinners White arranged for prominent men in New York. At all of these events orgies followed the meal and Stanford White presided over some of his guests with a young woman companion.

"She asked Miss Parker why she wanted to sell the letters she received from a man who had been so kind to her, and she said: 'He got from me more than he ever gave me. Now that he's gone and I am poor, and he left me nothing to take care of myself, I am willing to part with his letters for money to provide food.'"

The dramatic story of the handwriting expert was by far the most sensational of the trial. The story of Sue Parker, short of salacious details, was intended to show Thaw's belief in White's wrongdoing.

Justice Mills added to the interest when after the prosecutor raised the point that it had not been shown that all the typewritten copies were true translations of White's letters.

The expert could not swear that the copies were the ones he prepared, and Thaw was called to the stand in an effort to prove the authenticity of the communications.

"I cannot say they are the same ones," Thaw said, after first declaring they were the ones. The court's admission for the time barred the letters.

Denounced White to Thaw.

Cross-examined by Mr. Carvalho Thaw said that he told Thaw he believed the story Miss Sue Parker told him.

"I most certainly denounced White in telling Thaw Miss Parker's story," the witness said.

"Did you get the impression from Sue Parker that she was innocent until White wronged her?"

"I did not; I rather believed she was a woman of the streets."

"Did you tell Thaw that the letters corroborated the charge that White had debauched Miss Parker and then deserted her?"

"I said the letters had such a bearing on her story, but did not prove she had been drugged."

Thaw's practice in criminal cases haven't you found that allegations such as Miss Parker made always accompany suits for breach of promise?"

"That is generally true."

May McKenzie Again.

"Thaw told me that it was May McKenzie that White respected for four years until he discovered she was innocent, then he expressed a desire to marry her and the mess said in answer to Jerome.

"That's what I'm trying to get at," Jerome volunteered.

"My denunciation of Stanford White was based on the Parker letters, the talk I had with the woman and the things Thaw told me," the witness explained.

"Is there anything which shows the documentary evidence that White wronged Miss Parker?" asked Jerome.

"No, if by the expert admitted.

"Did he say how old May McKenzie was when she suffered at White's hands?"

Thaw Interrupts Question.

"She was not quite wronged." Thaw interrupted with feeling.

"What happened to her?"

"Thaw told me that White had first destroyed her belief in all that was good by writing her letters and showing pictures.

"After accomplishing this end he said Miss McKenzie was given wine and then wronged by White."

"Did Thaw tell you that other young American girls had been wronged by White?"

"Yes, he gave me names, but I forget them."

"Did not you know then that May Mc-

Jerome Makes Fight to Protect Name of the Dead Architect.

Kenzie told Mr. Carvin, my assistant, that White had never wronged her?"

"I heard that she was examined, but did not hear she said that things like this are not committed in public," the witness declared, with some show of feeling to Jerome in answer to a question. The declaration caused an outburst of approval from the spectators.

"The court will be cleared until better order is maintained," Justice Mills said, rapping his gavel.

Thaw's Jailer Called.

After declaring that he believed Thaw statements to him were perfectly rational Jerome, Mr. Carvalho was excused. To refute Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's story, that she feared her lawyer consented to marry Mr. Morschauer then called Edward Robinson, the jailer at Poughkeepsie.

"Did Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw ever visit her husband in the jail? asked Thaw's lawyer.

"She did."

"Did they remain alone?"

"Yes, for more than an hour each time."

This declaration, the district attorney, Jerome did not cross-examine him. Thaw went to the Matteawan asylum accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Miller, Sheriff Conway of Minnesota, Idaho, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Ohio, Georgia, Nebraska, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Virginia and Wisconsin. It seemed nearly certain that Thaw would lose for all to leave the bailiwick.

BOSTON WEATHER EXPERTS NOT HIT

If Chief Willis L. Moore of the Weather Bureau at Washington proposes to displace the other men in the Boston service with younger men, Local Forecaster Hyde knows nothing about it. "A policy of letting old men go would create no vacancies in the Boston office, anyway, as none of our men are anywhere near sixty years of age, as is the case in some other cities," said Mr. Smith.

JEWS WOULD FOUND COLONY IN TURKEY

BIG WARSHIPS LEAVE CAPE FOR VIRGINIA

PROVINCETOWN, Aug. 5.—Without display, the battleships of the North Atlantic fleet, which have been presiding in Cape Cod Bay for the past month, steamed out of this harbor, bound for Hampton Roads, Va. Off the Virginia Capes they will supplement their practice in the calm waters of Cape Cod Bay with maneuvers and practice under rougher conditions. The battleship Maine was one of the eleven vessels composing the fleet remained behind. It was deemed inexpedient for the Maine to proceed until various repairs have been made. Today the battleship will receive at the Portsmouth Navy Yard, where she will go in a few days.

The battleships were preceded in their departure by several hours by the flotilla of eleven torpedo boats. These somber little craft headed their noses out of the harbor and then scurried around the tip of the Cape.

The bigger vessels left in single file, headed by the Connecticut, flagship of Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder. Following at intervals, and giving the Cape shore a wide berth, came the other battleships of the four divisions, in the following order: Kansas, Vermont, Minnesota, Idaho, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Ohio, Georgia, Nebraska, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Virginia and Wisconsin. It seemed nearly certain that Thaw would lose for all to leave the harbor.

Before he left, there remained behind the cruisers Dixie and Castine, parent ship for the torpedo boats and submarines which are undergoing their acceptance trials. Naval experts say:

WAR HERO IS OPERA STAR OF FUTURE

William MacFarlane, a Boston, tenor, who was one of Uncle Sam's fighting men in the closing of the war with Spain, is going to Milan for the study which will perfect his voice. He was wounded in the famous fight before El Caney and, while he lay in the field hospital suffering torments from a Mauser bullet through the shoulder his comrades missed the cheering voice which had been raised in song during the march from the sea.

He may remain abroad five years. Mr. MacFarlane was born in Scotland, and came to this country when sixteen years old. He has had an adventurous career. He was a corporal in the seventh U. S. Infantry during the Spanish war and his gallantry on the battlefield gained him a certificate of merit signed by President McKinley. The government is now paying this veteran a pension of $20 a month because of the wound. He has been in South Africa and in Central America, where he managed a railroad plantation. But since a child he has had a voice of rare promise, for eight years he has studied under Maurice Parker and for two more at the Boston Conservatory of Music. Now he is to get the chance of a lifetime and, if his hopes are realized, may become one of the greatest artists on the operatic stage.

"Yes, I'm going abroad," said Mr. MacFarlane, "and a fine thing my for a few friends at the Commonwealth Motor Boat Fitting Co. in Everett, and Mr. Louis Lichtenheim, secretary of the International Wireless Telegraph Company, who pilmented me upon my singing, and offered to send me to Germany to complete my education. I was very much touched at this interest in me, and I have accepted his offer. I will devote my whole time to perfecting my voice, and try in some degree to repay the kindness of Mr. Lichtenheim.

GIRL IS SOLD FOR $25; THREE MEN ARE HELD

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—From a letter found in the possession of one of the men arrested late last night on charges of enticing a young girl from New York, the police say they have rounded the persons responsible for the bringing of girls to this city from other cities.

According to Special Policeman Barry of the Tenderloin district, the girl, Pearl Kessler, sixteen years, of No. 116 Essex street, this city, was sold by the two New Yorkers to a man in this city, who is also under arrest, for $25.

The two men from New York were arrested after they had been tracked from Broad street station by the special policeman. They were held under $1,000 bail each by Magistrate Carey at the Twentieth and Winter streets station for a further hearing tomorrow.

The men gave their names as Benjamin Rosenberg, twenty-six years old, of Irving street, and Herman S. Sapyra, twenty-nine years old, of East Fourth street. The other man, who is accused of having obtained the girl at a house on Tenth street, near Bainbridge, is the leader of Nathan Miller and was held under $1,000 bail for a further hearing.

The girl was held under $600 bail, while authorities will endeavor to take her in charge.

At the hearing the girl told Magistrate Carey she had come to this city from New York about two weeks ago and until then had lived with a servant girl named Nina Street, above Vine. Yesterday, she said, she was told that the man with whom she came to be married in Trenton to-day. Under these circumstances, she says she went to the house on Tenth street with Miller, where the latter was found and arrested.

HIT BY A BRICK; SUES FOR $50,000

Hazel M. Burnell, a minor, says a brick fell from the chimney of a house on Arsenal street, Watertown, owned by Michael Cotter, on June 7 last, and hit her. She has sued Cotter for $25,000 damages in the Middlesex County Superior Court. She has also sued Patrick J. Deegan for $25,000. She claims that painters working on the house for him dislodged the brick. Plaintiff and defendants all live in Watertown.

CHOWDER FOLK TRY TO PLEASE MR. HICKS

If Mr. John T. Hicks fails to get a clam chowder "like mother used to make," it will be simply because he has failed to study the avalanche of recipes which is being showered on him closely enough. There are recipes "like mother used to make," "like grandma used to make," and many other varities, all submitted in the effort to win the $5 offered by Mr. Hicks for the best recipe and the additional $5 offered by the Boston American for the second best recipe. Following are some of the recipes received:

SAYS THIS IS FINE.

This is a fine recipe of mine. Take four quarts of fresh clams, boil and shell, but save the liquor (better one quart). Try a pound of salt pork; add two onions, slice fine; allow to boil brown and add one quart of water; also six or eight potatoes sliced; cook twenty minutes; add shelled clams and liquor; also ½ pint of sweet milk and salt to taste. Get the clams from Sea View.

MRS. GRACE TOBIN.

No. 199 Montvale avenue, Woburn.

PLENTY CLAMS ESSENTIAL.

The whole secret of good clam chowder is to have plenty clams. And not too much of anything else to spoil the flavor. Take a peck of clams, or less will do; wash; put in kettle with a couple quarts of water; when shells open clams are ready. Take off the fire, drain the liquor into a bowl, take off the black scum and black mouths, cut off necks if long and chop soft part; then set away. Now peel and drive a quart bowl heaping full of potatoes, set on the fire with plenty boiling water to cover them; take about a half pound of fat salt pork, a hard, firm piece of back, and cut up fine; fry a nice brown, don't burn; take two large onions, chop fine, add to pork; do not neglect it for a minute, or it burns quickly if not attended to; try a little salt and pepper, then turn into the potatoes, add a little salt, not much, as clam liquor is salty, and a dash of pepper. Take three tablespoonfuls of flour, smooth out with a little water, not have it lumpy; stir in and when potatoes are done, which will be about an hour; cook about five minutes; add a quart of good, rich milk, then add part of clams; take off fire, as the clams are already cooked and much cooking toughens them. Put a lump of butter on your serving dish or in the kettle, but not let it boil, and some good crackers, either butter crackers or oyster crackers, not many.

ANNA D. GRAY.

No. 207 Bine Hill avenue, Roxbury.

LIKE OLD FOLKS AT HOME.

This is the way my father, grandfather and old folks at home in old Salem made their chowder. Try it. Take one half peck of clams, wash thoroughly, place in kettle with three quarts of cold water and cook until shells open; remove the clams and set the broth aside to settle; after settling a little salt; shell the clams and cut off the black portion; cut two slices of fat salt pork in small pieces and fry to a very delicate brown, using the kettle in which you will make the chowder; slice two onions and let simmer in the pork fat; slice two potatoes; add to the clams; five fair sized potatoes; add to the above; add broth, slowly strained, and boil until the potatoes are cooked; put in clams that have been put aside; add crackers and the chowder is complete, no more cooking is necessary. Take a large, square, deep dish, cover the bottom with common crackers halved, the inside of the crackers upward, pour in the chowder and serve. This is a dish fit for a President.

AUGUSTA M. LANGLAN.

No. 5 Westerly street, Roxbury.

ENOUGH FOR EIGHT PEOPLE.

Here is a recipe which should give enough for eight people. Take one quart of clams, three large potatoes, fry two slices of salt pork in an iron pot. Take the pork scraps out, leaving the fat in the pot. Slice two onions, put three or four potatoes into the fat. Then shoot six potatoes cut up like dice; put in a layer of clams, then one of clams, having the clams chopped fine, sprinkle plenty of pepper and salt, then a layer of onions and the bits of pork cut small, then another of a layer of broken crackers; fill up the remainder in this way. Then add the clam liquor and as much water as will more than cover them. Boil for a half hour or so, no matter. Cook twenty minutes or until potatoes are done. Add a little before serving and one pint of hot milk.

MISS M. KENYON.

No. 66 Cypress street, Providence.

JUST SLIGHTLY DIFFERENT.

Drain one-half pound of fat salt pork in a nice clean kettle; cook out in little squares, to a nice brown; one-half dozen medium-sized potatoes sliced; one onion, together until onions are done; two quarts of tomatoes (canned) in water until half done; change water and finish cooking; two quarts of sweet milk and two quarts water until clams open; then add the clams, cutting the heads off short, strain the clam bullion and put all together in the same kettle with the onions and pork scraps; then take two quarts of new fresh milk and bring to a boil; put this also into kettle and bring the whole thing to a boil and set off. Take common crackers and roll with a rolling pin until fine; put into chowder. Take about one dozen crackers split in two and put in chowder with one-quarter pound of nice butter and serve.

NERVOUS TROUBLES CURED BY THE TONIC TREATMENT

Massachusetts People Tell How They Were Restored to Health and Strength After Other Remedies Failed.

Why are nervous people invariably pale people? The answer to that question is simple enough. If your nervous system receives its nourishment as well as its medicine through the blood.

Let the blood become thin, weak and colorless and the nerves are starved—the victim is started on the road that leads to nervous wreck. Nervous people are pale people—but the pallor comes first. Enrich the blood and the nerves are stimulated and toned up to do their part of the work of the body.

The best evidence that the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure nervous troubles is the proof of cures in this state. Only a limited number can be given in this space, but those who are interested in the treatment can secure further information by writing for the booklet, "Nervous Disorders," which will be sent on request by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

GAINED WEIGHT AND STRENGTH.

A Shelburne Falls Man Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mr. Charles W. Lowell of, Shelburne Falls, Mass., says: "I was down in bed health for ten years and for much of that time was unable to do any physical work on account of nervous debility. I could do any work in the office although I was not in condition to do so and several physicians had been unable to give me any relief for a time.

"I couldn't do a good day's work without being all used up. I suffered from a general failure of health and had no strength or ambition. I had frequent backaches and a headache at least once a week. My sleep was broken. My eyes were affected by my nervous condition and I had dizzy spells for half an hour at a time, especially after eating a hearty meal. My appetite was poor and I was troubled with gas on the stomach and constipation.

"This condition went on for a long time and I became very nervous and irritable, so much so that I couldn't stand the least noise. Even the playing of my children annoyed me. I had no pleasure in life at all and merely dragged on a poor existence. I lost in weight and strength continually.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended to me by a friend in Meriden, Conn., and finally I made up my mind to try them. My appetite improved, my sleep became sound and restful and I gained in weight and strength. My nervousness has entirely left me and I am very glad to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

HELPED HER AT ONCE.

A Stoughton Woman's Endorsement of the Tonic Treatment.

Through building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Mrs. L. F. Lothrop, of Union street, Stoughton, Mass., became strong and robust. She says:

"I was in a nervous, run-down condition for several months. Part of the time I was confined to my chair and had to be carried about the house. My back was so weak that I could not get up. When I got so I could stand up I was troubled with dizziness when ever I tried to walk. I had to walk very slowly and was in constant fear of falling. I was emaciated and lost several pounds in weight and my friends thought I was going into consumption.

"I was treated by a physician for a long time without any benefit. One day I chanced to read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and bought some for a trial. They helped me almost immediately and gave me a complete cure. I have never been without the pills since and take a few of them once in a while for a tonic. As a result I have not been obliged to call a physician for several years. I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering as I did."

ANOTHER CURE IN ROXBURY.

Nervous Debility and Stomach Trouble Cured by This Method.

Josephine Lewis, of No. 1427 Columbus avenue, Roxbury, Mass., says:

"From overwork I became run down and for about two years suffered with nervous debility. I had but little appetite and suffered terribly with indigestion. Gas formed on my stomach and caused me intense pain. I had severe dizzy spells and at times felt despondent. My blood was impure, I could not get a good night's rest and had no ambition for anything. I was completely wornout and was so discouraged that I thought I would never get well. I was often confined to bed for days.

"The doctor said I was suffering from nervous debility, caused by impure blood, but I got no benefit from his treatment. I had heard so much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I began their use. I felt relieved after a trial of them and although my case was a stubborn one I continued to get better until cured."

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Pale, Weak, Nervous, with no Ambition or Energy.

Mrs. Mima Bailey, of No. 17 Herman street, Roxbury, Mass., used this tonic treatment to build up her weakened nerves, and tells of the benefit she received, as follows:

"A few months ago I was a nervous wreck, had no ambition, was very pale and had a terribly languid feeling. I lost nearly twenty pounds in weight, could not sleep and had no appetite.

"A friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me and I gave them a trial. A few boxes made a great change and I was soon able to work again and could eat a hearty meal. I am in the best of health now and feel better than I have for years."

How to Prevent a Nervous Breakdown.

Nervous debility is the forerunner of a nervous breakdown, perhaps the first warning sign of paralysis.

A certain amount of strain on the nervous system the body is prepared to meet, because the blood is forever carrying nourishment to the nerves and building them up. In other words, the blood feeds the nerves. But when there are excesses or mental overwork the demand for nerves exceeds the supply and there is nervous derangement—the nerves are starved.

The first thing to do in nervous debility is to stop the cause of the trouble, if possible, whether it is irregular living, worry, or whatever it may be, and then the nerves must be given special nourishment and the blood must be kept pure and rich. This is the work which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and this is why the pills have been used with such great success in nervous troubles that did not yield to ordinary methods of treatment.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain the elements necessary to make new blood and to restore nerves to their normal state, after-effects of the grip and fevers, neuralgia, nervous debility, St. Vitus' dance and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS FOR INVESTORS

HIGH RECORDS AGAIN TO-DAY

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Wall Street began business to-day with high records in Jersey Central at 210, and Great Northern Ore Lands at 81½. The profit taking then set in, but it was quickly absorbed. All the leaders became strong, and before the first hour was ended were within fractions of their highest prices of the year.

The prominent leaders were Pennsylvania, Reading, Steel and New York Central. There is talk of a distribution of assets by both Jersey Central and Reading roads.

Wheat and cotton were both slightly lower.

London was reactionary in the early trading. Most brokers are expecting a reaction in Wall Street on the 12th bill is signed by the President, but leading bankers do not believe there will be any setback of any importance because foreign money is so easy.

TO ENLARGE SAFETY RAZOR PLANT HERE

The announcement in New York that the Gillette Safety Razor Company, whose main plant is in South Boston, was about to establish a plant in Newark, N. J., develops that this concern is branching out in business and that it will increase the South Boston plant. "We are to establish a steel plant in Newark," said Vice President John Joyce to-day, "because that is nearer the steel field. It will supply our Boston plant with all the steel we need. We propose to expand our plant here and add to the thousands of skilled men whom we employ."

BAY STATE & FIRST NATIONAL

Bay State went from .50 to .62 to-day, First National from $47-8 to $57-8. If the present bull market continues both should go higher than ever before. Bay State has sold at $1.75, First National at $15.

$10,000 invested in either should more than double with but slight risk of loss. To double $10,000 in either of the leaders, Union Pacific or Steel would mean Union Pacific going to $404 and Steel to $150, with the chances of loss great.

We believe an aggressive campaign will soon begin in both Bay State and First National. We make a specialty of both.

STRONG TONE IN LOCAL LIST

STATE STREET, Aug. 5.—Stocks showed a good tone in the forenoon's market, with Miami and Lake Copper the features. There was arbitrage buying of Amalgamated and Steel Common and the latter was within ¼ of its record price made early in the week. There were some manipulative tactics in North Butte, which gave that stock a strong appearance and resulted in a point advance.

Miami rose to 17¾ on rather heavy buying orders by commission houses and Lake Copper rose 1¼ points to 29¾. Sentiment is particularly hopeful on the latter. North Lake ran off to 9¾, but subsequently recovered to 10¾. Superior Copper was less active but strong up to 50.

Amalgamated stiffened to 85¾ and Woolen rights were active and strong, selling up to 40 cents. Agricultural Chemical went fractionally below yesterday's record price at 48. This company has concluded arrangements with the German potash interests which will result in considerable saving to the company. Directors of the new Arcadian mining company have levied a $1 assessment, payable in two installments, 50 cents September 1 and 50 cents March 1, 1910.

Bay State Gas monopolized attention on the curb exchange and the price rose from an opening at 62 to 73 cents on large trading orders. First National and Davis Daly were strong features.

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, Aug. 5.—The chief matter of buying to-day was good, and indicates increasing public interest in the market. The selling is scattered and does not indicate liquidation of importance by any strong interests.

The June statements of Union and Southern Pacific are regarded as entirely satisfactory, and if the latter stock is some what heavy this is because of apprehension regarding the slowing up of crops in the Southwest in the forthcoming government crop report and the belief in some quarters that the dividend on the stock will not be increased at the next declaration. The new rate ordinances which induce selling of Southern Pacific impart a bullish tone to Southern Pacific Island and Atchison, but the dealings in Rock Island are small and the preferred stock is notably firm.

Earnings of the Harriman system have proven the value of the methods introduced by Mr. Harriman. Although the gross earnings increased $2,741,000 only the net increase of $6,334,609 for the year ended June 30 is shown, which also shows a decrease in gross earnings for the year of $2,750,544, and in net earnings of $6,275,150. Decrease of net earnings in June $1,000,000. The earnings show that Union Pacific has made 21 per cent. on the common stock after providing for all other charges, and Southern Pacific has made 17 per cent. Economies forced upon the railroads by the panic will result in a large net increase soon will for that reason show a greater proportion of net earnings for the stockholders than were ever seen before.

Cheap money and bumper crops are the keynotes of the present stock market. With the tremendous crops now practically under way, the remains under 2 per cent. It is the first time in the history of America that such cheap money has been had at this time of the year, and the low rate is due largely to the fact that the low rate is certain to continue. The bankers are fortified with $500,000,000 of Aldrich law steel rail currency in case of necessity. The abundant harvest of this year would undoubtedly give the world cheaper food if it were not that inflation is forced in the United States by law, while the whole world is agitated by the production of immense quantities of gold. The market knows that the unwarranted fly unmolested. Now is the time to get in debt.

Pennsylvania stock is proving a popular leader. It is so widely scattered that brokers do not hesitate to put their clients into it, one little fact of great significance has developed. The Pennsylvania passenger traffic at West End, N. J., has been doubled since the McAdoo Tunnel under the Hudson River was opened. At the same time Central trains from that place are being diverted to the UNION DEPOT in Pennsylvania has coming to it when it opens its terminals through Manhattan Island. An official of the company expresses the opinion that trains will be running through Manhattan regularly before the end of the year, and he believes they will be in New York city by November. But this passenger traffic is only a small part of the money to be made by the Pennsylvania officials expect. The great boom is coming through revival of the steel trade.

$ $ $

An indication of the revival in steel was seen when the Gary plant of the Steel Trust crossed 80 and made a new high record for the year. The Gary plant of the Steel Trust was constructed to take advantage of the Great Northern ore deposits. It is whispered in high places that the Steel Trust itself is the chief stockholder in these lands, perhaps actually owning control.

$ $ $

Strength of Western Union has been carefully investigated by conservative brokers and they are of the opinion that at the proper time it will be discovered that the Marconi Wireless is controlled by Western Union. There is also a line of some closer agreement within the next few months of the Western Union, the Telephone Trust and the Markey companies. This report has been in circulation so often that nobody believes it.

$ $ $

Amalgamated surprises the Street with its strength. There is every reason to believe that its latent value is unlimited. enormous extent exists in this stock. Several instances are known of short contracts from ten to twenty points under the present market price. These contracts have been outstanding for months, the holders stubbornly refusing to cover because they believe the stock is not worth even 80 a share. But they forget that there have been negotiations under way looking to the acquisition in behalf of Amalgamated of some of the most important of the porphyry copper companies.

If Amalgamated should take in some of the best porphyrys it might be worth its present market value and the shorts could be compelled to cover. Smelters is advancing because its earnings depend more on the volume of copper produced than on the price. All copper has to be refined regardless of what the refinement get for it and most of it goes through the mills of the Smelting Trust. That stock, therefore, is rising for legitimate reasons.

There are rumors of a combination of Gould lines which perhaps arise from the fact that a number of small roads already forming part of the Missouri Pacific system, but which have, up to the present, maintained separate organizations, will sink their individuality in the parent companies at the forthcoming meeting of stockholders.

The merger into Missouri Pacific of small lines now controlled by stock ownership is preparatory to the placing of a blanket mortgage on the Missouri Pacific property, and it is understood that in the way thus made clear the road's new financing will be brought out within a short time. It is possible that this matter may be made of considerable importance to fellow members of the Gould group, inasmuch as Missouri Pacific may advance to allied companies money needed for betterment work, on such terms as the roads themselves could hardly arrange in Wall street.

$5,000,000 TO MAKE STEEL PLANT BIGGER

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—Charles M. Schwab is preparing to expend $5,000,000 in expanding the Bethlehem Steel Works. He said to-day in an interview:

"This year I will spend $5,000,000 in increasing the Bethlehem plant. There will be a new beam mill to roll smaller structural steel—6 to 12-inch beams—so that I can run the original mill on larger sections alone, 12 inches and above.

"I shall also double my open hearth steel capacity at the Saucon plant, and will build the new blast furnaces, besides the two which have been rebuilt, making four large blast furnaces in all."

SIGN PAINTERS ON A STRIKE

Fifty union sign painters and helpers went on strike to-day for higher pay. They demand a minimum of $4 a day instead of $3.50 for journeymen and $3 a day instead of $2.50 for helpers.

There are 125 members in Sign Painters' Union No. 391. Thirty-five are working out of town but have their cards in Boston local. Forty are employed by four firms which signed to-day the new wage scale demanded by the union, so the men did not have to go out. The four firms signing the new scale are John Donnelly & Sons, Sprague & Nugent, A. C. Haley & Company, and W. B. Hardy.

The fifty on strike to-day were employed by these firms: Boston Sign Company, American Electric Sign Company, C. I. Brink, Gleason Sign Company, De Silver Sign Company, Pelkie Sign Company and James I. Blackmer & Company.

The strikers are meeting to-day at No. 724 Washington street, where Business Agent John F. Walsh of Boston local is directing the strike. Mr. Walsh was informed to-day by the International Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators that not only were the present Boston wages too low, but that the highest wages demanded were below the average of other big cities.

MORGAN ON CORSAIR NOW AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, Aug. 5.—Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan has arrived from New York on his steam yacht Corsair to take a few days' rest and to be with the Eastern Yacht Club fleet, which was due to arrive to-day for the annual regatta. Commodore Morgan came ashore and was met by James Sullivan. They motored to his palatial home at Graves Point, where they had one of those southern suppers the steward is noted for cooking.

SAXONIA IN WITH BRIDES

The Cunard steamship Saxonia arrived in port early to-day from Liverpool and Queenstown, with 150 saloon, 2000 second cabin and 650 steerage passengers.

Hardly had the boat tied up to her dock in East Boston, when Charles Adcock, a painter and decorator of Needham, arrived aboard seeking Miss Ada Smart of Leicester, England, who has come to this country to marry him. Joseph Hamilton of New Bedford, followed to meet Miss Mary James of Lancashire, his betrothed. A consultation with the Immigration inspectors was followed by a hasty trip to Boston where marriage licenses were issued and soon "Dock Parson" James A. Burns officiated at a double wedding in the second cabin.

Among the first cabin passengers were former Governor John McLane and Mrs. McLane of Nashua, who returned to-day after a four months' tour of England and the continent. The Governor said that he and his wife had been having a splendid vacation.

Dr. Theobald Smith of the Harvard Medical school, and Mrs. Smith came home from England. Dr. Smith represented Harvard at the recent Darwin centenary celebration in Oxford.

JEFF SAILS FOR EUROPE; BERGER HERE

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—James J. Jeffries sailed for Europe to-day on the George Washington, expecting to be gone for some time.

Jeffries left his sparring partner and manager, Sam Berger, here to look after bids and make arrangements for the proposed Jack Johnson mill, which promises all over the world are expected to bid for.

Jeffries has posted $5,000 forfeit as has Johnson, and by the time Jeffries returns to this country it is expected that the place of battle will be decided upon, providing that those who are after the match send in their bids immediately.

Up to date there have been a few bids made for the match, the first coming from Nick Arena, of the Southern A. C., of Savannah. This club offers a guarantee of $20,000.

M'CAREY TO BID FOR BIG FIGHT

By H. M. WALKER.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—Thomas J. Mc Carey intends to be one of the most prominent bidders for the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

"I will positively make the biggest and best offer for the Jeffries-Johnson battle," said McCarey to-day. "Los Angeles is Jim Jeffries' home and it is here that the most important battle of his career should be staged. I don't want to say in dollars and cents what my offer is going to be because that would give my competitors an advantage over me.

"When I make my bid I will never make but one bid. It will be of such a definite nature that the battle must come to me unless there is trickery somewhere. No promoter will be able to legitimately outbid me.

"I will be no piker in this affair, and when I put my bid in everybody will sit up and take notice."

CRUEL UMP ROBS DEVLIN OF HOME RUN

Arthur Devlin of the New York Giants was called out at the plate the other day when he tried to stretch a beautiful three-bagger into a home run. He made a bitter kick over the decision.

"Never mind, Arthur," one of the other players called to him. "We got a big safe lead when you scored."

"Dye s'pose I was kicking about the run?" he snarled back. "Naw, that ain't it. But I'm a poor man, and can't afford to be robbed that way. That umpire's decision cost me in the neighborhood of $50.

"I haven't been buying any clothes lately, hoping to make a hower. I was figuring it as I went along. I'd get a suit out of it, and a hat, and a pair of shoes—one for every day pretty near on the ground—and a pair of suspenders, and some cands—and then that umpire called me out."

WINTER BALL PLAYING HURT JOHNSON'S ARM

Walter Johnson's ineffectiveness this season is attributed to the fact that he did not take the rest last Winter that he promised to.

When Johnson left Washington last Fall, ostensibly to go to his home in California, he had in his pocket a check for $700 in addition to his salary, a present from the Washington Club in appreciation of his good services. The money was given Johnson on the promise that he would not touch a ball again until he reported at the training camp in the Spring.

Instead of going into California, Johnson went to Chicago, and for two months thereafter he played in California. The results have been that he has only shown an occasional flash of his former self this season.

Of course, Johnson could not have won many games with this season's team behind him, but when he is being hit for ten and twelve hits every time he appears on the rubber, it is convincing evidence that he is far from being the Johnson of old.

Ball players should realize that their work should be strenuous enough to warrant their resting during the off season. Those who do not follow this plan usually see their mistake when it is too late. Jim Delehanty and Bill Carrigan, Winter, and how best of little service to the team because of this. And yet ball players consider it a hardship that the club owners should pass legislation preventing them from playing ball after the regular season closes.

JOE THOMAS BACK IN THE RING GAME

Joe Thomas, the California middleweight, is another instance of a pugilist retiring from the ring who cannot stay retired. Thomas, after a battle at Boston a few weeks ago, announced that he would never again put on a glove in the ring, and that he was going to get married and settle down to a business life.

Then along came the tempter in the form of a boxing manager with an offer. At the moment Thomas's sentiments returned to the ring. Then the boxing manager made another appeal, and Joe swallowed the bait and fred Douglas has reeled him in.

It could see that Thomas has started in to train again at Stratford, Ct., for a six-round bout in Philadelphia. Fred Dooley, manager of the Douglas A. C., who has secured Thomas's promise to return to the ring, will match Joe with Either Harry Macdonald or Harry Lewis for a show in about two weeks.

TWO FOR HIGHLANDERS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The New York American League Club has purchased Johnny Lush, third baseman of the Portland team of the Pacific Coast League, and Roach, pitcher, of the Lowell team of the New England State League. Roach will join the New York club in September, but Lush will not report until next Spring.

WHY I MURDERED HIM—The SUNDAY AMERICAN will contain the most remarkable confession ever made public. Don't fail to read this!

BIG WRESTLERS TO GRAPPLE ON MAT

The big outdoor mat bout of the year heretofore will be that in which Stanislaus Haros and Emil Maupas, the latter the French expert, will slam each other at the Scotch parade on Saturday at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury. The bout is to be to a finish, best two out of three falls, under mixed styles, one fall each at Greco-Roman and catch-as-catch-can, the third and deciding bout, if necessary, to be agreed upon mutually twenty-four hours before going on the mat. George V. Toohey has been agreed upon to judge the event.

It is conceded that each man excels at his own style, so that there is a strong likelihood that there will be a third fall necessary, before the game can be cut into a winner's and loser's end.

PRIZE FIGHT IN MID-OCEAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—A stirring prize fight in mid-ocean enlivened the voyage of the Teutonic of the White Star Line which arrived to-day. The fight for a purse gotten up among the passengers was between Frank Dymond, for five years champion lightweight of the English army and Mike and Ryder Vine, who is also made a name as a pugilist in the English army. Both are now firemen on the Teutonic. The contest was stopped in the sixth round to save Vine from a knockout.

YACHTS OFF ON LONG RACE

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 5.—Bambino II., entered by Francis Grinnell of New York, got the jump on the start over the other yachts in the 100-mile race that is being decided to-day. There was a heavy sea and a fresh breeze to the signal with a thirty-two-mile southeast wind blowing, but old tars declared this would abate when the boats once got outside the bay.

The race is under the auspices of the New Bedford Yacht Club, the course being Bambino II., Arnold, owner; sloop, Nomans Land and Block Island to Port Pond Bar and back to New Bedford. The starters were the Bambino II., knockabout, Bambino II., Arnold, owner; knockabout, O'Pleah, Allerton Edwards, owner; sloop, Nimbus, J. Jones, owner; sloop, Thyra, Frank B. Stanley, owner; sloop, Thyrie, Henry T. Bacon, owner, and the sloop, I. O. U., W. W. Pilsbury, owner.

The judges were George H. Nye, W. H. Howell, Jr., R. V. Rouse, Morgan Barney, W. M. Thompson and D. H. Hicks.

Quaker fans are glad that the Braves let Libbey go as he was always a hoodoo for Murray's men.

Who is the greatest manager for picking on "rookies"? Mack, Griffith, Jennings or Stallings? He has strings on more than fifty players in the minor leagues.

If the Athletics win the series from Chicago, Connie Mack will be well prepared to do the Tigers that he is the Bwana Tumbo of the baseball jungle.

* * *

An odd incident occurred in a semi-professional game at Chicago the other day. The pitcher had a hole in his blouse, so that it would not hold the baseball. He put the ball in the hole, and let it fall on the ground back of the pitcher. A batsman drove a hit through the pitcher's box and the batted ball hit the one on the ground, with the result that the ball on the ground was batted out and the other one remained in the blouse. The fielders threw to the first baseman almost simultaneously and he, seeing both balls coming, dodged out of the way.

Three out of the four defeats accumulated by the Phillies and West this trip have been by one run each. The Quakers are the champion one-run winners of 1915. Probably no major league team has lost so frequently by one run as the Phillies.

Should Connie Mack's scheme for playing double-headers in the Spring go through, the necessity of getting pitchers in good condition at the start of the season will be more important than ever.

Archer is catching so well for the Cubs that Pat Moran is taking a rest. Archer is touted to be the best little backstop since the days of Kling.

Davy Jones of the Tigers, who is the pinch hitter for that bunch, says he is better at that game than Ty Cobb. Cobb is the Brown, Davy says, by 2,000 to 1.

A Vincent Campbell, a pitcher who traveled southward with the Cubs last year and who was drafted by the Cincinnati Reds, has been released by Joe Tinker. Clarke got him from the Aberdeen club of the Northwestern League.

The owners of the Montreal club finally have their wish. They have been after Rumpus Jones, formerly with the Cubs, for a long time, and now they have him. Jones's brother owns the Indianapolis team of the American Association. Carl has been changing to Montreal.

The Southerners say that Pitcher Boeler, purchased from the Shreveport team by the Cleveland Club, looks like a Cy Peckinpaugh find, if he can pitch like "Brick" Lasley will be satisfied.

* * *

Matty McIntire is planning to take the Detroit club, with the exception of Tyrus Cobb, to Cuba immediately after the season is over for a Winter trip.

* * *

The Shreveport, La., team has sold $11,500 worth of players this season, or about as much as the gate receipts for a year.

* * *

Pittsburg is trying to get $20,000 for Dick Rudolph of the Toronto team. One-half of this was paid to Providence for the pitcher when the pitcher made good.

* * *

Connie Mack believes he has another great pitcher for the Athletics in John Lively of the Montgomery club. This youngster was the first man in the Southern League to catch a no-hit no-run game. He caught Bill Hall's.

* * *

With Miner Brown and Ed Reulbach absolutely off colors, Tinker has a big problem on his hands to get a pitching staff together that will be able to stand the gaff. Jimmy is a team which is figuring on being in at the death in a pennant race!

WILL BUILD BRIDGES FOR AUTO RACES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The plan for the great automobile meet over the Merrimac Valley course at Lowell for the week of Sept. 6, contemplates the construction not only of two bridges over the course, so that there may be an entrance and exit after the events have been started, but of a pontoon bridge across the Merrimac river at one of the widest points. This will allow the railroads to run to a temporary station which will be erected on the Lowell side, enabling their passengers at the entrance to the bridge, which will connect with the main grandstand upon the other side.

The contracts for all of the construction work have been awarded, and the work must be finished by Sept. 1. The entire course, which is a three-fifths miles, will be policed with militia, and a requisition will be made upon the State police to call them to assist the Lowell police and Tyngsboro departments. It was owing to the large force of police in charge of the 250-mile road race last year that not an accident of any kind occurred.

The American Automobile Association, which is to hold its second national stock chassis competition over the Merrimac Valley course at Lowell, Mass., in September, has had a new regulation in automobile racing. The five days' meet opens Sept. 6, which is Labor Day, and a proposition has been received from the Trades and Labor Council to include a labor parade, to terminate upon the race course before the road race is started. The labor men argue that unless the parade is held in connection with the race, the former will be an utter failure, since the downtown streets will be deserted as they were last year, when 80,000 people went early in the morning to the boulevard and elsewhere along the course.

The new Houpt cars, the advent of which has been awaited by motorists with considerable interest, will be seen in New York at the end of this month. The first of the models have been assembled and for nearly a month have been in continuous test in the hands of Montague Roberts at the Houpt factory at Bristol, Ct. They will be driven hundreds of miles through the mountainous sections of New England, New York and Pennsylvania. At least three cars will reach New York by August 31. The finest cars of the 450 cubic inch sixty horse power type. The six cylinder type will not be ready for another month.

The Houpt company recommendations an extensive campaign in racing and will enter the cars in all of the stock events for which they are eligible.

* * *

The cars of the Houpt car are constructed, each of which will be made in seven models. The four cylinder car will be rated at sixty horse power, but is expected to develop considerably more, and the six cylinder car will be rated at ninety horse power, but is one of the most powerful cars ever manufactured in America.

* * *

Nearly 1,000 laborers and 100 teams are at work on the motordrome being constructed at Tacoma, Wash., which is declared to be the scene of many notable contests this Fall. It will be opened November 5 with short-distance races and speed trials. Fifty cars will be started on its saucer and compete safely. Eleven farm houses will be removed from the centre of the plot to make room for the race track, way village for the accommodation of the drivers, mechanicians and others. Two more fireproof garages and a machine shop will also be erected. Grand stands to seat 30,000 persons will be erected.

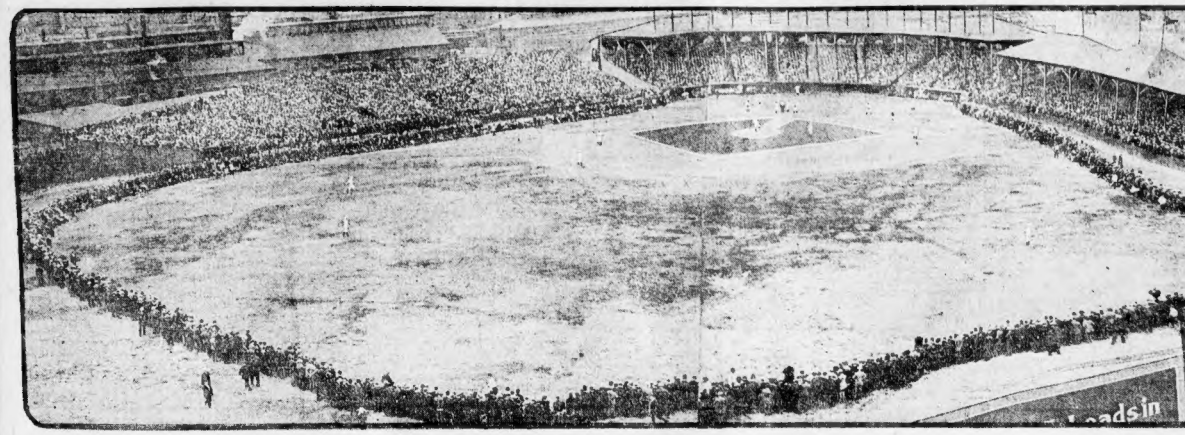
SPORTS DIFFER ON THE CHAMPION HEAVYWEIGHT

Here's What a Crowd of 25,000 at a Ball Game Looks Like.



Panoramic photograph of the field, grand stands and bleachers at yesterday's games between the Red Sox and Tigers at the Hunting ton avenue grounds.

IS JOHNSON OR JEFF THE CHAMPION?

What Well-Known Sporting Men Say:

By H. W. WALKER.

Is Jim Jeffries still the heavyweight champion of the world?

The big fellow sent a shock of surprise and incredulity throughout the Queensbury realm when upon the occasion of depositing a $5,000 forfeit to bind a match with Jack Johnson he made the following statement:

"I am still the heavyweight champion, despite my retirement. It will be me and not Johnson who will defend the title."

This startling announcement has started a riot of opinions all over the country wherever boxing is discussed. In the writer's opinion Jeffries has no more right to call himself the present world's champion than he has to proclaim himself the Czar of Russia.

In response to a telegram sent by the writer to sporting authorities and celebrities throughout the United States many replies have been received showing a wide diversity of opinion. Probably the most astonishing one came from the man who developed Jeffries from a raw boxer into a champion, and who afterwards handled him for several years. Here it is:—

BILLY DELANEY—

By crawling out of his match with Squires Jeffries paved the way for Johnson to become champion. Jeffries is the champion "four flusher" of the world. Johnson is champion pugilist of the world and if he waits for Jeffries to fight him he will take the title to the grave with him.

W. W. NAUGHTON, Sporting Editor San Francisco Examiner—

Jeffries' contention that he is a bonafide champion is simply ridiculous. He is no more champion of the world at the present time than Theodore Roosevelt is President of the United States.

TOM S. ANDREWS—

Jeffries publicly announced his retirement in 1905 at Reno, Nev., when he said he would turn over the title to the winner of the Hart-Root bout. I consider Johnson the rightful holder at present.

TOM SHARKEY—

There is only one heavyweight champion and that is Jim Jeffries. As a matter of fact, neither Burns or Johnson ever fought any of the real aspirants for the championship honors.

E. W. DICKERSON, Sporting Editor Denver News—

Johnson, in my opinion, should be recognized as the present heavyweight champion.

SPIKE SLATTERY (San Francisco Call)—

Jeffries retired five years ago because of lack of opponents; therefore he has no right to claim the heavyweight title unless he wins it back again. Johnson is title holder.

BILLY PAPKE—

Jeffries is still the champion. Johnson's conquest of Burns don't make him champion. Burns don't hold a clear victory over O'Brien.

T. J. McCAREY—

I certainly am of the opinion that Jeffries is still the heavyweight champion of the world. He retired for the simple reason that there was nobody left for him to fight.

PROFESSOR HARRY GILMORE—

Jeffries, by his retirement, allowed Burns to defend the heavyweight championship title against Squires and Moir, and then to lose it to Johnson. In my mind, Johnson is the present champion.

JOE WOODMAN, Manager of Sam Langford—

Jeffries is, in my opinion, still the champion, notwithstanding his retirement. Titles cannot be given away and must be fought for. Jeffries laid off simply because there were no men good enough to fight him.

OTTO S. FLOTO, Sporting Editor Denver Post—

I have always looked upon Jeffries as the champion, regardless of his retirement.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

ARE YOU TRAILING ALONG WITH Mutt these days? In spite of the fact that he is being examined for loose wheels in his transmission case, the old sport manages to whisper in the ear of the memory broken every day. He popped yesterday on Jack Atkin at 7 to 5, but he had to squeeze the rabbit's foot for fair to get it over, as Sir John Johnson beat the Schriber horse out by a head, but was disqualified for fouling. Every once in a while the old scout is there with bells on, so you'd better string along with him.

THE WISEST MAN I KNOW IN THE fistic game has advised me to gather up all my spare coin and take the short end of any odds that are offered that Ketchel will trim Langford when they meet at the Fairmount Club in New York on Labor Day, and I'm going to do it. Here is the way he dopes the fight:

"Both will win and left win in four or five rounds at the most. This doesn't mean that Ketchel is a four or five round man, but he's a knockout guy, and Langford, while a clever boxer and a good fighter, is not in a class with Ketchel, Stanley will never be able to hit me."

Ketchel and his style of fighting are made especially for Sam. All he has to do is to land the ability to stand the gaff, but Sam has shown that he can't do that. Ketchel's wallop has a lulled a number of good men to sleep, and land it quicker, besides having a clever jaw that will take more punishment than Ketchel ever tried to hit.

O'Brien never got a decision over Johnson, although many of the sport critics who saw the Philadelphia bout this summer, assert that O'Brien had the better of the argument. No decisions are given in Philadelphia.

On July 3, 1906, at Reno, Nev., Jeffries refereed a fight between Marvin Hart and Jack Root, and announced that he had retired from the ring and the winner of the bout, would, in his estimation, be his logical successor. Hart knocked Root out in the twelfth round. On Feb. 23, 1905, Burns defeated Hart in twenty rounds in Los Angeles, and was hailed as champion. Recently Jeffries denied that he ever gave up his claim to the title.

In the "Ringer Cup" contest at the Woodland Golf Club four scores have been completed and all are tied at 92.

Grass fires which are so prevalent now after the dry weather, have visited the Woodland Golf Club course. The fair greens over the ridge to the tenth and six-teenth holes were burning Tuesday and left a long black trail where the once dry yet fast fair green was.

One of the tournaments which are looked forward to the most in the near future is the open event at the Wollaston Golf Club, August 14. This course is one of the best in Massachusetts, and has been one of the few to escape the scourge of the sun and although the fair greens are fast and hard, the greens, so far the best in this vicinity, are soft and velvety and are one of the strong inducements to visit the club.

The club event at the Hatherly Golf Club, Saturday of this week, will be of no little interest, especially to the members of the Hatherly Club. The tournament will be for the "Keppi Cup," which was presented to the club by Mr. W. H. Smythe.

RUDEN TO PACE M'LEAN IN RACE

That Hugh McLean intends to suffer no more set backs, so far as good pace is concerned, is certainly his act in retaining the services of Carl Ruden, one of the best pacemakers in the business, to lead the way for him in his four contract races at the Revere track, the first one coming Saturday night, when Hughey races Peter Prevost and Pat Logan.

To beat such youngsters as Drohuck and Logan, allowing them two laps start, is not an easy task in the twenty-five mile race, and McLean will have to extend himself, as he has only a week's preparation in getting back to his championship form. The champion feels confident that he will retain his undisputed title in the races against Prevost and Collins, the following Saturday night, but he will have to make his best appearance this week in order to convince the fans.

"I hereby challenge Packy McFarland of this city to a boxing match of any number of rounds from ten up," Wolgast's challenge reads.

The forfeit of $500 is to go as part of a wager not less than $1,000, the weight to be 133 pounds, three hours before entering the ring. While this challenge is directed at McFarland, the forfeit goes for a match with Battling Nelson as well.

"ON WITH THE DANCE"

"Dancing Combines All the Arts. Social Dancing Is One of the Elements Which Keep the World Young."

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

THERE are people who think music was invented by the Devil.

There are others who consider a game of cards played for recreation a sin in the sight of God.

There are others who call dancing one of the cardinal sins.

All these people are morbidly insane. Listen to this tirade from a mistaken fanatic:

"If we are trying to inspire our girls with the thought of having their 'price far above rubies'—or any boys with the nobleness of their relation to women, dare we, as parents and mothers, as public school teachers, as leaders in our religious organizations, place them in the way of the temptations of the modern dance?

"Under the guise of innocency it creeps into our homes, which shou'd be the bulwark of purity, and insidiously steals the bloom of modesty from the cheeks of our girls, and undermines the christian principles of our boys, so that instead of treating women as one too sacred to be rudely touched, treats her as a plaything, as one to minister to his desires or gratify his lust.

"In the majority of our high schools the dance has entered—not content that older ones should be its victims—that those of uneducated classes should be its devotees; but it must get the cream of our young men and women, and endeavor to drag them down into its clutches of impurity.

"To teachers, superintendents, school boards, fathers and mothers realize what it is doing? Surely not, or they would arise en masse and stamp it out of existence instead of resting and saying, 'Young folks must have their fun, and that is innocent.'

"What is it about the dance will cause the sweet young girl to have that unusual flush on her cheek, to throw aside her maidenly reserve, and too many times that cloak of modesty, and then exclaim, 'I would rather dance than eat!' Is it simply because of the exercise? Why then does she not dance with the girls, every available moment, if the mere exercise is so delicious?

"Ah, we know that it is the sex relation that brings a quickening of the pulse. As her hand is placed in his, his arm about her waist, his breath upon her cheek—under the influence of music, laughter, softened lights, can she be a girl and not feel her pulse bound within her?"

Woman Needs a Tonic.

The woman who wrote these words needs a nerve specialist. She needs association with good, wholesome-minded girls and boys, and with good men and women, who love the dance, and who have been educated in it from childhood.

She needs to purify her own mind from its noxious imaginings. She writes like a woman who is sexually starved, and whose mind creates a false condition, and is consequently filled with morbid concepts on that subject.

She needs to study the world, and human nature, and cause and effect a little more carefully, and she will discover that instead of being a menace to purity, the dance, properly enjoyed under right conditions, is a normal outlet for superfluous vitality, and a protection to its participants in producing healthful fatigue and dreamless sleep. It stimulates the circulation by a perfectly natural and normal process—that of an agreeable exercise.

One such mood as the writer of the quotation indulged in while writing her article is more detrimental to the mind and body than a whole season of dancing in the company of well chosen friends.

The Home the Best Dance Hall

Dancing should never be participated in by young girls in common public halls. Like any other pleasure, it should be regulated by rules of good breeding, selected associates and right environment. The home is an eminently proper place for a young girl to enjoy dancing, or a club where older people act as chaperons.

No man or woman can acquire absolute grace and ease of deportment without some acquaintance with the rudiments of dancing.

Dancing combines all the arts.

It is music, poetry, sculpture and painting all in one. Social dancing is one of the elements which keeps the world young; it is an ingredient in the elixir of youth.

I would have a daughter instructed in dancing rather than in arithmetic, if the choice had to be made.

The waves of the sea dance; the sunbeams dance on the earth; the birds dance on the bough; the planets dance in space and the other joins in the glorious pastime.

Let well meaning and earnest minded mortals turn their attention to more necessary reforms than the doing away of the beautiful dance. The habit of truthfulness is not actively taught in the world. Everywhere in our churches and Sunday schools and our "best society," we find a large majority of young people who lack a clearly defined idea of what truthfulness means, and every phase of untruthfulness, from inaccuracy to absolute falsehood, is encountered.

An organization to promote absolute accuracy of statement would help the world along much faster than an anti-dance movement.

Some Things to Teach Instead

A sense of personal responsibility toward the dependent creatures of earth—the old, the poor, the decrepit, the defformed, the unfortunate and the dumb animals—needs to be taught young people. Temperance in food, and abstinence from stimulating drink and narcotics needed to be taught.

Everywhere we find the young and the middle-aged employing sleeping powders to induce slumber, and parents and doctors lift no warning voice.

Send people who are troubled with insomnia to the dancing class, and let them indulge in the joyous exercise for two hours before retiring, and they will need no sleeping potion.

There is more certain cure for abnormal conditions of mind and body, if taken in the early stages, than dancing.

Had the foolish young woman, who wrote her absurd tirade against this lovely recreation, had a correct childhood in the dance she would never have become so morbid and unhealthful in her thoughts.

Ou with the dance!

A WALTZ-QUADRILLE

THE band was playing a waltz-quadrille,
I felt as light as a wind-blown feather,
As we floated away at the caller's will,
Through the intricate mazy dance together.
Like mimic armies our lines were meeting,
Slowly advancing and then retreating,
All decked in their bright array;
And back and forth to the music's rhyme
We moved together, and all the time
I knew you were going away.

The fold of your strong arm sent a thrill
From heart to brain as we gently glided
Like leaves on the waves of the waltz-quadrille;
Parted, met and again divided—
You drifting one way and I another,
Then suddenly turning and facing each other,
Then off in the blithe chasse,
Then airily back to our places swaying,
While every beat of the music seemed saying
That you were going away.

I said to my heart, "Let us take our fill
Of mirth and music and love and laughter;
For it all must end with this waltz-quadrille,
And life will be never the same life after.
Oh, that the caller might go on calling,
Oh, that the music might go on falling
Like a shower of silver spray,
While we whirled on the vast Forever,
Where no hearts break, and no ties sever,
And no one goes away."

A clamor, a crash, and the band was still;
'Twas the end of the dream and the end of the measure;
The last low notes of that waltz-quadrille
Seemed like a dirge o'er the death of Pleasure.
You said good-night, and the spell was over—
Too warm for a friend and too cold for a lover—
There was nothing else to say;
But the lights looked dim, and the dancers weary,
And the music was sad, and the hall was dreary
After you went away.

Woman's Crime Against Woman

How the Divorce Evil Could be Cured in One Generation

By DOROTHY DIX

ARTICLE No. 1

This is the first of three articles on this important subject by Dorothy Dix which will appear on this page.

ONE of the little ironies of life is that while practically all civilized women are banded together in different kinds or altruistic societies for the amelioration of their sex and the general uplift of humanity, yet the one practical thing that they could do, and that would really bring about the millennium, they never think of doing.

Woman's chief source of sorrow in the world is domestic misery. It is their own unhappy marriages, or their sons' and daughters' unhappy marriages that break the hearts of women.

Every other trouble in life is a mere pinprick compared to this. Poverty, privation, hard work, sickness, even death, are as nothing to the living sorrow that a misgnated woman endures for herself, or when a mother sees a mean and selfish woman dragging down her idolized son, or a brutal husband tyrannizing over a tenderly-reared daughter.

The great majority of women are called on to endure the martyrdom of an unhappy marriage either in their own case, or to suffer all its agonies vicariously in their children's ill-starred matrimonial ventures; and there is nothing more tragical than the thought that the remedy for all the suffering lies in women's hands, and that they do nothing to avert from their sisters the sorrow they might shield them from if they would.

What Makes Happiness?

It is a fatal truth to state that every woman's happiness depends upon getting a good husband. Every man's happiness depends upon his getting a good wife. Every mother's happiness depends upon her sons and daughters getting good wives and husbands.

IT IS PERFECTLY POSSIBLE TO RAISE UP IN A SINGLE GENERATION A RACE OF YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO WILL FULFILL THIS IDEAL. THIS WOULD STOP THE DIVORCE EVIL AT ITS VERY BEGINNING, FOR NO MAN OR WOMAN WHO HAS GOT A GOOD MATE WANTS A DIVORCE.

If this long felt want for good husbands and wives is ever supplied, women must supply it, and it is culpably humorous for them even to talk about helping the sex until they recognize this initial obligation to it.

As matters stand to-day, woman's great crime against woman is the way in which she rears her children. Not one mother in ten thousand is bringing up her son or daughter to be the sort of a husband that of character; that she must have been taught to be philosophical enough to make the best of every situation, and to laugh over mishaps, instead of wailing and weeping.

The Way to Make a Good Wife

The mother knows that the girl cannot be a good wife and a helpmeet, instead of a hindrance, unless she has been trained along practical lines and to bear her share of family burdens. She must know how to get a hundred cents out of a dollar when she spends it; how to cook and sew, and run a house economically and comfortably.

Except in the case of the enormously rich, a man's success in the world, as well as his happiness, depends upon his wife's thrift and temper, and nobody knows this so well as his mother. Nobody looks so anxiously at the bride as does his mother to see whether her son has drawn a prize or a petition in bankruptcy in the matrimonial lottery.

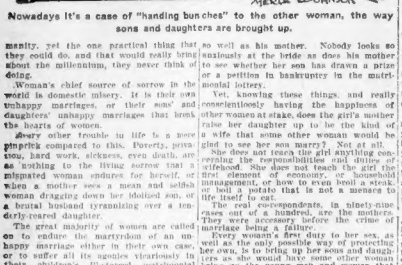
Yet, knowing those things, and really conscientiously having the happiness of other women at stake, does the girl's mother raise her daughter up to be the kind of a wife that some other woman would be glad to see her son marry? Not at all. She does not train the girl anything concerning the responsibilities and duties of wifehood. She does not teach the girl the first element of economy, or household management, or how to even broil a steak, or boil a potato that is not a menace to life itself to eat.

The real co-respondents, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, are the mothers. They were accessory before the crime of marriage being a failure.

Every woman's first duty to her sex, as well as the only possible way of protecting her own, is to bring up her sons and daughters as she would have some other woman bring up the young men and women that her own children are to marry.

But we will discuss this subject further to-morrow.

BEAUTIFUL SKIN FREE—Mme. Cavallieri will tell in the SUNDAY AMERICAN how every woman can make her skin beautiful.



Nowadays it's a case of "handing bun-ches" to the other woman, the way sons and daughters are brought up.

THE CASHIER WAS WISE TO THE GAME

By KENNETT HARRIS

"IT'S a corker," said the bill clerk, enthusiastically; "one best little old show in this town, believe me. There's class to it."

"All the same you could earn my undying gratitude by refraining from whistling the airs," observed the cashier, wiping his pen on the lining of his coat. "I'll take your word for its corking qualities."

"Go see it," urged the bill clerk. "Don't take my word for it. Go see it, and it won't satisfied I'll refund your money cheerfully. I've seen it six times now."

"What position does she occupy in the row?" asked the cashier.

"The third," answered the bill clerk, promptly. "Say, there's a little lady that's got a great future before her, my reverenced friend."

"And a magnificent past behind her, no doubt," returned the cashier. "It's a pity she's got such a poor complexion, isn't it?"

"What do you know about it?" demanded the bill clerk. "You haven't even seen her. You don't know whether she's a blonde or a brunette, but that doesn't prevent you from knocking her. Honest, a man of your age ought to know better than to slam a hard-working, self-respecting young woman just because she happens to be on the stage."

"I acknowledge the justice of your reproof, my boy," said the cashier. "It ill becomes me, indeed, and I apologize. Tell me about this beauteous young creature whose talents have so excited your admiration."

Some of Her Good Points

"She's a pippin, that's what," declared the bill clerk.

"I think you said she had a lovely complexion," suggested the cashier.

"It's all right about her complexion. Don't you ever worry about that," said the bill clerk. "Her complexion's all right, and as to her shape, and you won't need any memory system to keep you from forgetting it after you've seen her once. She's got action, too."

"Marvelous!" exclaimed the cashier. "I agree with you that with the qualifications you mention her path to fame and fortune is assured—unless some manly and noble youth should win her trusting heart and remove her from the stage with its feverish excitement and meretricious glitter, to adorn a modest, but oh, so happy, home. Did you say you had been to see her six times, Johnny?"

"Never you mind," said the bill clerk. "Of course, she may have a happy home of her own unless she resides with one of her married daughters," said the cashier. "It is certainly supposed by some persons have no taste for domestic life. Imagine how pleasant it would be to come home from the office and find little wife humming a merry tune while she sews more excellent into her symmetricals or dips her extra set of golden curls into a bowl of gasoline."

Wouldn't Need a Chorus Then.

"You can imagine it if you want to," said the bill clerk. "You're one of those contentious guys who are always looking for bugs in their spinach and imagining they're there if they ain't.

"This little lady may have four or five interesting grandchildren, but I don't believe she has, and I don't thank anybody for telling me she has. She may have a face like a squash pie underneath an inch of paint, but I think she's good looking as they make 'em, and I'm satisfied to go without proof that she isn't. She may be eight paris excelsior or curled hair and two parts bone out of a possible ten, but she looks good to me at that. But as it happens, I just go to see the show because it's a good show."

"What's it all about?" asked the cashier.

"About?" repeated the bill clerk. "What do you mean by 'about'? There isn't any 'about' to it. If there was what do you suppose they'd want with a chorus?"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IS SHE "KEEPING COMPANY?"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a constant reader of your advice to lovers and I am going to ask you myself for some advice. I am on very friendly terms with a man about fifteen years my senior—I being eighteen. We correspond regularly and we meet often, but I have never gone to any place of amusement with him, only during the day time.

Now, Miss Fairfax, is this considered "keeping company"? A girl friend insists it is. Kindly answer me soon. I do not wish to keep company with any man. ANXIOUS.

WELL, it looks rather like what is called "keeping company"; but if you are merely good friends, it is not. "Keeping company" is a state where the two most interested are a little dearer than friends, but not so dear as sweethearts. What do you think, are you "keeping company" or not?

TRUST TO TIME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of twenty-three, not very much money, but excellent prospects. Some time ago I met a very charming girl who fascinated me almost immediately by her loveliness, and has since then completely won my heart.

I have tried to tell her how much I care for her, but cannot make her take a serious interest. She is always delightful on every occasion that brings us together, and seems inclined to be rather fond of me, but she will not quite consent to give me an answer. What method should I pursue to make her take a more serious view of my proposal? I. R.

SHE probably does not know her mind yet, and so defers her decision. If I were you, I would drop the subject for a while, and after a month or so ask her again. By then she will have had time to think it over and wonder if you are in earnest; and she may awake to her own sentiments.

The Destroyer

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

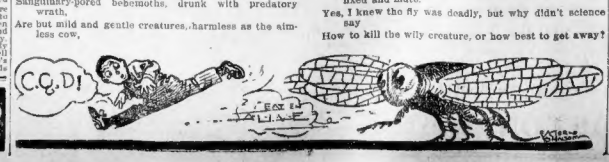
HE reposes on the platter with a grim and ghoulish leer.
And i tromble to behold him, trembling in a clammy fear.
For I've learned, by reading science, that tiger, gaunt and dread,
Leaping on me from the jungle, couldn't kill me half so dead.

But I, helpless, sit there watching, as each breath I quickly bate
Till the brute shall fall upon me like a black avenging fate.

Death is in his glaring eyeballs; death is in his dripping jaws;
Death is in his furtive movements, as he near and nearer draws.
Dragons, breathing smoke and blazes, pythons rearing in the path,
Sanguinary-pored bebemoths, drunk with predatory wrath,
Are but mild and gentle creatures, harmless as the simless cow,
When compared to the destroyer whose attack awaits me now.

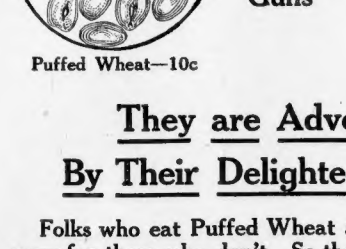
Bit! I seek in desperation to repel his dread advance!
Flick! He shifts his base and thrills me with a hate-emburdened glance!
Then, red-eyed and filled with fury, he approaches, while i sit
Like a bird before a cobra, dead of soul, bereft of wit,
Till I feel his horrid footfall on my unresisting chest,
And—but how can you expect me to set down the awful rest?

Science, I admit, had warned me, I had learned that every breath
That this terror breathed upon me meant inevitable death.
I foresaw the dreadful moment when the vile and vengeful brute
Pierced me with his vicious vision while I stood transfixed and mute.
Yes, I knew the fly was deadly, but why didn't science say
How to kill the wily creature, or how best to get away?

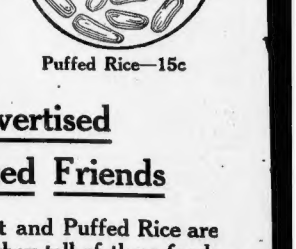


CHASE & SANBORN'S HIGH GRADE TEAS & COFFEES

Foods Shot from Guns



Puffed Wheat—10c



Puffed Rice—15c

They are Advertised By Their Delighted Friends

Folks who eat Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice are sorry for those who don't. So they tell of these foods to others, and the others tell others. That's how the use is spread.

The enormous consumption of Puffed Wheat or Puffed Rice is not due to what we have told.

It is beyond our ability to picture in type the goodness of these new foods.

But we get some to try them. Then those few tell the rest.

As a result, there were seventeen million dishes consumed during the month of July.

This month, we hope that some of them are going to be served on your table.

17,000,000 Breakfasts

Please think what that means. Did you ever know any other foods to accomplish such quick popularity?

The reasons all lie in the foods.

Here are gigantic grains, puffed to eight times natural size.

Here are crisp, brown, nut-like grains, made four times as porous as bread. They fairly melt in the mouth.

Here are digestible grains, with every starch granule exploded by steam. Here are foods that the children like.

You will not wonder at their wide popularity when you once learn what such foods mean.

How They Are Puffed

Here is the process, invented by Prof. Anderson, by which these queer foods are made.

The whole wheat or rice kernels are put into sealed guns. Then the guns are revolved for sixty minutes in a heat of 550 degrees.

That fierce heat turns the moisture in the grains to steam, and the pressure becomes terrific.

Then the guns are unsealed, and the steam explodes. Instantly every starch granule is blasted into a myriad particles.

The kernels of grain are expanded eight times. Yet the coats are unbroken, the shapes are unaltered. We have simply the magnified kernels of grain, made porous and crisp and digestible.

Let the Children Say

Let us put the whole question up to the children. Serve them one package and hear what they say.

Whole wheat and rice are the best foods you can think of. And this is their most digestible form.

If the children prefer these to all other cereals, it is good for all concerned.

So, order a package. Serve it tomorrow. Then let the children decide.

The Most Temperate Country Is the One That Drinks the Most Alcohol Per Capita

This Sounds Improbable, but It Is True. REAL TEMPERANCE Means Not Prohibition, but Absence of Whiskey

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

The associate of Metchnikoff, the great scientist and student of human physiology, who succeeded the still greater Pasteur, has announced the results of certain experiments in feeding and in the prolonging of life.

Particularly interesting to Americans are his statements concerning drink and the temperance question. He says, what has often been said in this newspaper, that the highly alcoholic drinks—whiskey, gin, brandy and so on—ARE ABSOLUTE POISONS, destructive to the heart, tissues and the brain, and inevitably shortening life.

At the same time, this scientist, who savagely denounces the use of the poisonous, highly alcoholic drinks, includes in a wise and temperate diet the use of light beer and of light wines—the latter preferably diluted with water—at meals.

It is a fact that of the physicians in Europe and America who stand at the head of their profession at least 90 per cent. take the same stand. They look upon whiskey, and the poisons like it, as deadly, but they include in a truly temperate diet the moderate use of beer and wine, an overwhelming majority of them prescribing the light wines and light beers for the building up of health.

This newspaper feels that the solution of the temperance question must be found, and that it will be found, when whiskey and all the highly alcoholic drinks shall be classed with other poisons and sold under restrictions that usually accompany the sale of poisons; when the brewers shall have the moral courage to cut loose from whiskey, now their criminal partner, and when truly temperate drinking shall be in America, as in other countries, a normal, open part of the daily diet, and not a secret, shameful act, as at present.

Interesting proof of the fact that it DOES MAKE A DIFFERENCE WHAT YOU DRINK will be found in all statistics as to the use of alcohol.

Take the three nations, Russia, America and France. Everybody knows that the Russian moujik drinks vodka, which is pure alcohol mixed with a little water, AND WHEN HE STARTS TO DRINK HE DRINKS UNTIL HE CAN'T STAND. There is infinitely more drunkenness in Russia than in America.

And in America, because this is the whiskey and cocktail drinking country, there is a great deal more drunkenness than there is in France.

Since Russia is more drunken than America, and America more drunken than France, the uninformed man would take it for granted that the Russians absorb more alcohol per capita than the Americans, and the Americans more alcohol per capita than the French.

THE REVERSE IS THE FACT.

In Russia the consumption of alcohol is three litres (a litre is a little more than a quart) per capita.

In the United States the consumption of alcohol is eight litres per capita.

And in France the consumption per capita is sixteen litres.

Yet there is less drunkenness in France than in America, and less in America than in Russia.

That is due to the fact that the Frenchman drinks his sixteen litres of alcohol per capita in the form of light wines and beers; he is not poisoned, he is not made drunk.

In the United States, where there is more drunkenness, a great part of the alcohol is swallowed in the form of whiskey, gin, etc., but, fortunately, a considerable part is taken in the shape of light beer and native wine, and that fact helps to save the situation.

In Russia the one drink is the poisonous vodka, purer, it is true, than the average American whiskey, not quite as high in alcohol as the average American whiskey, but a highly alcoholic drink, more than 40 per cent. pure alcohol.

And in Russia the consumption of light wine and light beer amounts practically to nothing, therefore Russia is a drunken country.

The Russian will tell you that when a person starts to drink vodka he gets drunk and stays drunk as long as his money lasts. He will sell his goods to get more of the poison.

And everybody in America knows how often that happens in a lesser degree to the unfortunate whiskey drinker.

IT NEVER HAPPENS TO THE GERMAN, WHOSE DRINK IS LIGHT BEER; TO THE FRENCHMAN, WHOSE DRINK IS A LIGHT, NATURAL WINE.

If the Russian government would abolish the sale of vodka, substituting light wine and beer, drunkenness would disappear, the people would be happier and more prosperous, even though the actual consumption of alcohol should increase from three litres, the present consumption, to sixteen or twenty litres per capita.

If in America we should prohibit or effectually discourage the sale of poisonous alcoholic drinks, whiskey, gin and brandy, clean out the dives, put common sense and respect for the rights of others into the heads of the violent prohibitionists, we should have the true temperance of France, of Germany, and of Italy, progressing constantly with the intelligence of the people.

Whiskey and its fellow poisons—THEY are the curse of the country. To associate them in indiscriminate denunciation with natural, temperate drinks is as stupid as it would be to compare opium and cocaine with tobacco smoking.

Let us have TRUE TEMPERANCE, the only temperance that is possible or desirable. Abolish the use of poisons, make temperate drinking respectable and normal, eliminate the extremes—the whiskey drunkard in the gutter, and the prohibitionist dictator who would make temperance hateful and impossible.

The wise man is he who can live, succeed and be happy entirely sober—a teetotaler if he chooses—while respecting other men's rights and redding human history intelligently.

Never Again!

A Real Reformer in a Hole

What is this? Nathan Matthews, a TAX DODGER? Matthews is a former Mayor of Boston. He has recently been awarded a high degree by Harvard University. He was at the head of the Finance Commission—now the "Smelling Committee"—and a dyed in the wool reformer when it paid to be dyed very deep.

Statements made by Councilman Frank A. Goodwin of Ward 1 would seem to indicate that Matthews has secured AN ABATEMENT of $37,400 on the Hotel Oxford property which he owns. Councilman Goodwin comes forward with facts that leave little room to doubt the accuracy of his figures.

Matthews is evasive as usual. Just as evasive as he was when he declared recently that "Boston is the most corrupt city in the world."

It is too bad to see a reformer like MATTHEWS IN A HOLE. Matthews has made some explanations which do not explain.

The American hopes that Councilman Goodwin will KEEP RIGHT AFTER MATTHEWS until he forces him to pay the legal and just tax on his property. And furthermore we hope that Councilman Goodwin and other city officials will GO AFTER OTHER TAX DODGERS who sanctimoniously lift their eyes to heaven and prattle about the rottenness of Boston city government while through some hocus-pocus they manage to evade the laws.

The proper way is for the assessors to assess Matthews's property as it should be assessed and compel him to pay what he owes. Failing to pay the taxes, the property should be disposed of according to law.

There is nothing to be gained by a war of words between the political friends of Matthews and Goodwin. On the facts so far presented Matthews OWES THE CITY OF BOSTON A GREAT DEAL OF MONEY, and this should be collected forthwith. Even a reformer beautifully tagged by Harvard has no right to dodge his taxes.

It would seem to be up to Matthews to dig down into his bank account for some money that belongs to the city and to say a little less in the future about Boston being the "most corrupt city in the world."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

PA was awful busy last nite, we had a reseption up to our house. One of Pa's frends with he had met onver in Roslindale many yeers ago went ouver to Germany & lerned to be a Count, & Pa was giving him a reseption on his reeturn. He had a speech all made up to say to the count, & he read it to Ma & me before time for the count to eum. This is how the speech went:

We have here with us tonite a man wich was born in Roslindale & got onver it. he got onver it enuff so that he caim to be a count. It is with the gratest pleshur that I stand here tonite to anoint a man of titl. If I had a daughter, I wud marry her to this deer Roslindale frend of mine, & if I'd had Bobbie was bigger & older, I wud let him be the count's valet.

What a teady you are, sed Ma. You will have to chop that speech rite thure. If you mak that speech, I will jump up & say that no count cud marry a daughter of mine, & that I wud sooner see my littel son making a fair living climbing poarches than acting as a valet, especially a valet for a count.

If you ever sed a thing like that to my deer frend, sed Pa, I wud git rite up & leave the house. Wud the Count go with you? sed Ma. He certingly wud, sed Pa. Then fine, fine! sed Ma, I will surely git up & say that very thing about keeping my daughter & my son away from a Count.

It wuddent pay you to do anything of the kind, sed Pa. You littel know the true nobility of that man, Pa sed. He is to the manor born. If he is like sum of the rest of yure frends, sed Ma, he is moar likely to the manger born. Let him cum along, though, sed Ma, & we will look him onver.

About 8 o'clock the Count caim to the house. Pa shook hands with him about five (5) minits & then sed, Shake hands with my wife & my littel son Bobbie. I shook hands with the Count but Ma dident shake hands, she just bowed. She just bowed a litel bit, like I how wen I speek a peece.

I am pleesed yure frendship to make, sed the Count to Ma. I have heard speek yure husband often about you. Is thare sum ale?

Thare is no ale, sed Ma. Thare is a big morris chair onver in the corner, & if you want to rest from yure hard afternoon, you are welcum to set thare. Open the windows, Bobbie. If we can hear the street cars going by, maybe we will not have to hear yure father's frend snore.

You are a handsum lady, sed the Count to Ma. Onver in my country I am the gest man with the handsum ladys. You dont tell me, sed Ma, when is the next train back? I hate to see you lonesome. I am glad that my husband has framed up this grate party for you, without telling me, Mad sed. If thare is anything I like, it is to hold a reseption for a nobleman, wen all I have to eat in the house is a tra of tripe. Perhaps tho, sed Ma, my deer husband will go out & buy sum food.

Then Pa went out & caim back in ten (10) minits & tould Ma that all the stoars was closed. Then thare will be no reseption tonite, sed Ma. You & yure nobel frend mite as well go down town & have a pair of sausages. Reseption indeed, sed Ma, it maiks me laff.

Pa dident go, tho. Him & the Count stayed all the eevning, but nobody els caim. They ate tripe & Ma set thare & luffed at them. Then Ma went to the piano & sung

My deer old husband knew a Count,
To nothing much did he amount,
I swear to goodness it maiks me grin
To see the nabors trooping in.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

A PANDORA'S BOX

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The salacious discussions unleashed and paraded in the Thaw investigation by Jerome of Hannah Ellas, Richard Canfield and Metropolitan notoriety are suggestive of "Pandora's Box."

Those of us who have familiarized ourselves with secret star chamber "cut and dried" inquisitorial investigations by doctors, officials or lawyers, commend Justice Mills in having ordered that the State's alienists must make their examinations of Thaw in open court. And why not, pray?

LAURA MITCHELL HUGHES.

INCREASED COST OF CLOTHING

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The Payne bill increases the duties on the following articles of wearing apparel:

Underwear, cotton hosiery, silk hosiery, cotton gloves (see amendment to paragraph 328), cotton cloth for shirts, dresses, etc., linens, silks of all kinds, laces, embroideries, for those who can still buy them, the duties are increased on watches.

The only item of wearing apparel I find reduced is shoes, which, for men at least, are all made in this country, so there will be no reduction in price there, as none are imported.

The President's great kid glove victory amounts—not to any reduction—but to keeping the present duties where they are (although cotton gloves are outrageously advanced in paragraph 326). A great industry in men's kid gloves was built up under the Dingley duties, but there are no reductions in these, in spite of the fact that we pay $2 for a man's glove that is bought in London for 70 cents retail.

The bill is a substantial increase in duties on the necessities of life, and, study it as I will, I can reach no other conclusion. The people have been swindled.
